New Record Set by P-51 In Winning Bendix Race

Paul Mantz Captures Trophy for Fastest Time to Cleveland; Miss Cochran Is Third

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (AP).—Paul Mantz, making his fourth try in 12 years, won the Bendix Trophy classic today, pushing his souped-up Army fighter past the National Air Race grandstands 4 hours, 42 minutes and 10 seconds after he took off from Van Nuys, Calif., more than 2000 miles away.

His average speed of 435.6 miles an hour was 153 miles faster than the record established in 1939. The race has been a feature of the National Air Races since 1931.

Mantz, whose home is in Burbank, Calif., finished third in 1938 and 1939. In this race he flew a North American P-51 Mustang, the fat-bellied speedster that fought in both Europe and the Pacific.

Second place went to William F. Eddy of La Jolla, Calif., who averaged 424.9 miles an hour.

Cochran Is Third

Jacqueline Cochran, former head of the WASP and only woman entrant, finished third with an average of 420.8 miles an hour. She and Eddy also flew P-51's.

Mantz was the second plane to come in, trailing about a minute behind Thomas Mayson of Burbank, who had taken off 40 minutes earlier. Mayson averaged 408.6 miles an hour.

The starting flag on the first day's program of the National Air Races, being renewed after a seven-year lapse, was dropped at 11:30 a. m. (EST) to start a series of entertaining events which included demonstrations of a Navy drone (a pilotless target aircraft), acrobatics at both high and low speeds by some of the country's top stunt pilots, and precision flying by Army, Navy and Marine pilots.

Before the day's program started, four more pilots qualified for the two big closed course races, the $40,000 Thompson trophy classic on Monday and the $15,000 Sohio event on Saturday.

Cook Cleland, flying a Corsair, went around the 30-mile course twice at an average of 361.8 miles an hour. Earl Ortman of Tulsa, Okla., averaged 344.3 in a P-51 Mustang. Both expect to be in the Thompson, limited to the fastest dozen among the 20 entrants.

William Ong of Cansas City, flying a P-51, averaged 276.9 miles, about two miles an hour above the minimum for the Thompson, but appeared likely to be put into the Sohio with those fliers who failed to average 275.

Charles Bing of Lynchburg, Va., averaged 265.9 in a P-39 entered by Ortman, who has a third plane, a P-38, also listed as an entry.

Three planes stil were to be qualified. These were the entries of Charles Tucker of La Crescenta, Calif., who is flying in the Bendix; Dale Fulton of Washington, C. D., and Ortman's Lightning.

8-Year-Old N. Y. Girl Fatally Shot on Street

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—An eight-year-old girl, Rita Pinta, was mysteriously shot and killed today as she stood talking on the sidewalk with a six-year-old sister, Mary.

Police said a small-caliber bullet, presumably from a rifle struck the child in the neck. Rita was dead when her mother, Mrs. Michelina Pinta, reached her. Officers immediately made a house-to-house search in the vicinity for rifles and seized two such weapons.

Polar Blast Curls Slowly Toward D. C.

Record Low August Readings Recorded Throughout Midwest

The polar blast which slipped down the east slope of the Rockies and poked its cold nose as far south as the Gulf yesterday morning, curled slowly this way last night.

Record low August readings were recorded throughout the Midwest and there was some slight frost damage in northern Indiana mucklands yesterday.

It wasn't so hot here in Washington, either.

Low Temperature Forecast

Temperatures down to the low 40's were forecast generally for last night in the area East of Chicago to the Atlantic Seaboard. The District forecast for local expected low reading was 53, or five degrees colder than Thursday night.

The Middle West reported the mercury climbing back toward normal, but New England was promised "abnormally cool" weekend temperatures.

The Weather Bureau at Fort Wayne, Ind., reported scattered light frosts nipped tomato and pepper crops in that area Friday morning. The Weather Bureau at Chicago said it had a report of frost in the northwestern part of Indiana.

A belated report from some central and northern sections of Wisconsin said temperatures in the cranberry bogs skidded as low as 23 degrees before the chilly wave moved out of that region.

In Texas, where five consecutive days of rain have ended a drought, a minimum of 49 degrees was reported at Miami. Flood warnings were posted along the San Antonio River and Beaumont streets were flooded as the rains continued.

Low of 49 Reported

Temperatures in the north central States generally ranged from the low 30's to the high 40's. In Oklahoma a low of 49 was reported at Vinita. Little Rock, Ark., and Nashville, Tenn., had 58 and 57 degrees, respectively. Readings in Louisiana and Mississippi were in the unseasonal 70's.

The broad wave of polar air which slipped down the east slope of the Rockies engulfed the entire Army P-80 Jet Breaks Record At 500 M.P.H.

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (INS).—An Army P-80 jet "shooting star" set a new air-speed record between Van Nuys, Calif., and Cleveland today, flying the 2045 miles in 4 hours and 9 minutes.

Lieut. Col. Leon Gray of Arizona piloted the ship and broke the National Air Races Bendix Trophy mark of 7 hours and 14 minutes set by Col. Roscoe Turner in 1936.

Gray's ship and three other Army jets were entered in a special division of the Bendix Trophy Race this year. They did not compete for the prize itself.

Gray averaged a little more than 500 miles an hour on the record-smashing flight.

President Begins Return Voyage To Washington

With President Truman At Sea, Aug. 30 (AP).—The yacht Williamsburg cut leisurely through the Atlantic tonight, carrying President Truman toward Washington and the end of an 18-day vacation on salt water.

The Williamsburg left Bermuda early this morning. Mr. Truman had spent eight days there, mixing as little work as possible with fishing, swimming, sun bathing and strolling.

A farewell message from Adm. Sir Ralph Leatham, Governor of the British Crown Colony, said the islands had been honored by the Presidential visit. The Chief Executive replied that he had enjoyed his visit immensely and hoped to return.

The Williamsburg is due to clear the Virginia Capes around noon Sunday, stop briefly in Hampton Roads, then cruise up Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac. She is scheduled to dock in Washington about 5 p. m. (EST), Monday.

Quake Cuts Newspaper

Anchorage, Alaska, Aug. 30 (AP).—A sharp earth tremor is responsible for the Anchorage Times being printed today as a two-page paper. A piston stud in the newspaper's main printing press was snapped last night simultaneous with a sharp earth tremor felt throughout the region. No other damage was reported in the area.

OPA Restores Controls Over Slaughtering

Wholesalers Given Increased Margin of 25 Cents a Hundred

By the Associated Press

The OPA last night restored slaughter controls over the meat industry and announced livestock price ceilings of $16.75 per hundredweight on hogs and $20.25 on cattle effective at midnight tonight.

OPA also granted meat wholesalers an increased margin of 25 cents a hundred pounds effective when wholesale ceilings are restored September 5.

The ceilings are $2.25 higher on cattle than the price levels of June 30 and $1.40 higher on hogs, but are far below the quotations at Chicago in today's uncontrolled markets.

Ceilings for dressed lamb and mutton will bring to livestock owners $3 per 100 pounds more on choice and good grade lamb than on June 30.

Butcher shop prices on meat—which will be above the June 30 prices as a result of last night's action but lower than those at present—will be announced next week and will go into effect September 9.

The ceilings announced last night are based precisely on the recommendations of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson.

On cattle and calves, each slaughter's quota is 90 per cent of the amount he killed in 1944. On hogs the new quota is 70 per cent.

This increases the quotas on beef and lowers them on higs, as compared with the quotas which lapsed June 30. The former quotas were 85 per cent on beef and 90 per cent on hogs.

OPA Gets Control

For a more effective war on the black market, all slaughter controls were centered in OPA. Before controls expired June 30, OPA had jurisdiction over only non-Federally inspected plants and the Agriculture Department over Federally-inspected plants.

Shortage in Men's Clothing May Last Two More Years

Shoo the moths out of that suit, gents. It may have to last another two years.

A Civilian Production Administration man told a reporter yesterday that these are the bare facts on men's clothes:

Fifteen million men still will be hunting suits on December 31, 1946. Not until 1948 will suits be plentiful enough for men to be choosey.

The shirt scarcity will last for a year.

There'll be a shorts shortage for 6 to 12 months.

Police Raid $5000-a-Day Numbers Den

Three Suspects Taken With Policy Slips In One of Busiest Places in District

Three men were arrested yesterday in a raid on a Southeast Washington numbers' house which detectives say handles a daily business of $5000.

Antigambling squad raiders described the unpretentious house at 316½ I st. se., as "one of the busiest numbers' racket establishments in Southeast Washington."

The detectives initially seized two suspects and $300 cash and 150 numbers' books. The third suspect walked right into their hands, with $7500 cash in pockets and 3000 numbers' slips.

Those apprehended when Detectives James Roche and Perry Miller entered through the rear door at 1:30 p. m. are Smith B. Griffin, 52, of 235 Virginia ave. se., and Robert L. Prince, 35, of the I st. address.

Nabbed as he walked in the front door after parking his car outside was Clarence I. Gormillion, 48, of 1201 Q st. nw. Detective Roche identified him as a combination banker and pick-up man.

The three were later released under $1500 bond each for appearance at 10 a. m. today before U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. All are charged with operating an illegal lottery and possession of illegal lottery slips.

D. C. Felonies Gain 35% In Past Year

Felonies in Washington increased 35 per cent in the 1946 fiscal year, Maj. Harvey G. Callahan, police superintendent, revealed yesterday.

He said the sudden crime rise "seems to lie in the general unrest following the end of the war," and the increase in city population.

Major Callahan, in his annual report to the Commissioners, declared that it would require a force of 2500 men and a general modernization of department equipment to police the District properly. He reported he could foresee no immediate reduction in the city's population.

More Men Asked

Callahan said steps had already been taken to protect a city of over one million people. He has requested 111 additional men in the 1948 police budget, he said.

The police force today has an authorized strength of 1739 members.

A breakdown of felonies reported in the year ended June 30, showed the following increases: robbery, 65 per cent; housebreaking, 49 per cent; unauthorized use of automobiles, 38 per cent. Murder jumped 26 per cent.

While the report indicated a 35 per cent general crime increase, Major Callahan said it was "gratifying to note that the department had succeeded in clearing up approximately 72 per cent of all felonies reported. And this figure represents a drop of less than 1

Hungarian Denies Negotiations for USSR Affiliation

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP).—Janos Gyongyossy, Hungarian Foreign Minister, today described as "absurd" a Budapest report that a Hungarian delegate was negotiating with the Russians in Paris to make Hungary a member state of the USSR.

"It is too absurd for words," he said, smilingly. "It is true that Erno Gero, Hungarian minister of transport, is here with our delegation, but any negotiations he is having with the Russians are confined to the question of our peace treaty. I cannot imagine how such a fantastic report came into circulation."

He added that Gero had discussed the Hungarian economic situation with the Russian delegation, but there had been no question of negotiations.

Molotov Declares Visit of U. S. Fleet, Presence of Troops To Be Interference

Paris, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov charged angrily at the peace conference today that the impending visit of an American war fleet to Greece constitutes American interference in Greek internal affairs.

Embittered at the prospect that Greece will vote for a monarchy in the plebiscite to be held Sunday, Molotov attacked Greece, the United States and Britain.

"We know British troops are in Greece and now some war vessels are to be sent by the United States," Molotov said.

"This constitutes serious support for the present Greek government. There should be a stop to interference in the internal affairs of the Greek government.

"The presence of Anglo-American observers at the plebiscite means foreign support to the Greek government, despite the fact that it is most unpopular with the Greek people."

Greece Starts Row

Greece herself innocently started a four-hour row at the plenary session by asking the conference to recommend to the Big Four Foreign Ministers consideration of Greek claims against Russian-satellite Albania for the northern Epirus region.

Molotov was on his feet at once, shouting denunciations of Greece and asserting the Greek government was using "foreign maneuvers" to cover up preparations for insuring a monarchist victory in the plebiscite.

"The Greek delegation needs external successes to provoke nationalist sentiments to hide what is happening inside its country on the eve of the plebiscite—to hush up plans for the King's return," Molotov said.

"This conference should not be used as the tool of somebody to cover up things inside Greece by external maneuvers intended to assure the return of the King and the restoration of the monarchy and to convert Greece into a center of disquiet and a threat to peace in the Balkans," Molotov said.

"Sometimes it is advantageous for a government to rely on foreign troops but such assistance is precarious. It may call for reaction from people who will see that their government needs foreign support to maintain its prestige."

Delegates listened silently to Molotov's denunciation of the only country in eastern Europe which has successfully kept itself outside the Soviet iron curtain, while Russian troops occupy such countries as Yugoslavia and Poland. But then the fight started among the men charged with establishing world peace.

Yugoslav Delegate Mosha Pijade started a long triade against Greece.

"A point of order!" shouted British Delegate A. V. Alexander, red-faced, white-haired, studious-looking.

Acheson Denies U. S. Interferes in Greece

Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday denied Russian Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov's charge that the United States is trying to interfere in Sunday's Greek plebiscite by sending American warships into Greek ports.

He noted that the ships would not visit Greece until four days after the plebiscite. He reiterated the Navy's assertion that the carriers Franklin D. Roosevelt would go there because of the late President's interest in Greece.

Russian Claim Of 100 Millions From Italy Voted

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Russian claim for 100 million dollars in reparations against Italy was approved today by the Italian economic committee of the Peace Conference, marking the first major accomplishment of the month-old, 21-nation European peace parley.

The award, recommended by the Big Four, was indorsed by the Italian commission after it voted down, 15 to 5, a Canadian proposal to defer approval until after consideration of war damage claims of Yugoslavia, Greece and other victims of Fascist aggression. Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Brazil were in the minority.

Final approval of the commission report must come from the general plenary session after other economic clauses of the Italian treaty have been acted upon. However, since all of the 21 member nations except Norway are represented on the economic commission, the action was regarded as ending the dispute over Soviet reparations from Italy.

After the Canadian proposal was defeated the commission approved another portion of the Big Four setting out sources of the reparations.

Spy Seizures Pose Problem For U. S. Army

Arrest of 15 Germans Complicated by Their Work for an 'Ally'

Frankfurt, Aug. 30 (AP).—American intelligence officers declared today that agents of the Russian-inspired "Free Germany National Committee"—reputed to have about one million members—were believed to be engaging in widespread secret operations in the three western zones of Germany.

An official announcement earlier said that 15 Germans arrested in Stuttgart in the breakup of a spy ring had belonged to the "Free Germany" movement, and declared that movement had been started in Stuttgart with the aid of a Russian secret police officer.

The announcement said one of the 15 Germans once had worked for the United States Government and had given the Russians information on American troop movements. Officers said investigation of the Stuttgart circle's activities was continuing.

Prisoners' Status Confused

Tonight a confused situation arose as to the status of the 15 Germans, and it could not be determined whether they still were in jail.

The legal chief of the Stuuttgart military government said formal charges had not been served on them, that they couldn't be charged with espionage, and that intelligence authorities in Frankfurt had ordered suspension of the drafting of charges.

In Frankfurt Col. C. F. Fritzsche, deputy chief of Army Intelligence in Europe, said "I don't know anything about it." The Counter-Intelligence Corps chief in Stuttgart said "we have no plans to drop charges against Walter Kazmarek," one of the 15 said to have been the ringleader. The Stuttgart CIC chief refused to say whether charges had been served on the other 14.

The Stuttgart military government legal chief said "the files on the Germans were given us by the Counter-Intelligence Corps, which

U. N. Body Delays Hearing Ukrainian Charges at Least Until After Election

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP).—Russia and Britain fought stubbornly tonight in the United Nations Security Council over hearing Ukrainian charges against Greece but the Council delayed a decision at least until next Tuesday, two days after the Greek plebiscite on the return of King George II.

At the end of a long discussion of the case by Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, the Council adjourned until 3 p. m., EDT, Tuesday at the firm request of the United States delegate, Herschel V. Johnson.

Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, led the attack on hearing the Ukrainian charges that Greece is menacing the peace of the Balkans with the statement that they are "wild accusations." He demanded that the Council refuse to hear them in their present form.

Gromyko Is Firm

Gromyko, equally as firm in his advocacy of the Ukrainian charges, said that great wars have started from little incidents such as the "serious clashes" he said are occurring on the Greek-Albanian frontier. He said those opposing the form of the Ukrainian complaint were "indulging in gymnastics."

Gromyko launched into a long statement on the case after some opponents of hearing it in its present form had completed their statements.

He charged that the presence of British troops in Greece raised the whole question of foreign rule and that that was apparently the reason Cadogan was opposing the move to hear the case.

The Russian delegate said that the border incidents noted in the complaint might lead to complications of more "than local nature." He said that Greece and Albania do not live in glass houses—they are in the Balkans.

Placed on Agenda

Gromyko's demand yesterday for information within two weeks on the disposition of Allied troops and air and sea bases in alien nonenemy countries, such as the British troops in Greece, was placed on the provisional agenda today but its acceptability also must be voted on by the Council. It was not mentioned today.

The Ukrainian allegations that the Greek government is a menace to the peace of the Balkans and is aided and abetted by British troops on Greek soil occupied the spotlight in the Council just as the same general question took the front rank in discussions at the Paris Peace Conference.

The Soviet Union and the Ukrainian kept the case hot in the council here as the hour neared for the vote Sunday in Greece on whether King George II is to return to that country.

Cadogan was joined by Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, in his call for facts instead of the "general statements" he said were made by the Soviet Ukraine.

Wants More Precise Complaint

Paul Hasluck, Australian delegate, said the Ukrainian complaint should be more precise. He said it should cover the complete Balkans situation if admitted to the Council and not just the Balkans as affected by the Greek government.

The debate on whether to put the case on the agenda in its present shape broke sharply after the

Shoreside Village Watches Buildings Move Toward Lake

Lake Ozarks, Mo., Aug. 30 (INS).—Apprehensive residents of Lake Ozarks counted the hours today until the arrival of a geologist who will determine whether their little village is being swallowed by its namesake—Lake of the Ozarks.

So far th ereports of residents were ominous. A 30x50-foot frame-and-stone structure of the Austin Boat Co. already has scooted into the lake. Two other buildings have moved a considerable distance toward the water.

However, some of the natives thought they had an answer to the strange lake-ward movement of the town's buildings; the opinion that the hill on which the community is built may have been undermined by recent heavy rains—16 inches fell in two weeks.

Sympathy Walkout a Surprise

Thousands Stranded as Strike Ties Up W.M.&A. Buses Here

Employes of the Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., pulled a surprise strike shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday, stranding thousands of homebound Federal workers.

J. M. Halcombe, president of the AFL drivers union, said the walkout would continue today. It was called to protest employment of nonunion construction workers on a garage being built by the bus company at 1510 Southern ave. se.

The word to strike was spread among the 150 company employes a few minutes after the District Council of Carpenters (AFL) put a picket line around the firm's offices.

Halcombe made clear his men would not go back until the picket lines are taken off. And Nat Jackson, business agent for the carpenters council, said he would keep the line "going indefinitely."

Despite a prediction the strike would hold over into another day, however, Halcombe summoned the strikers to a special meeting at 8 p. m. yesterday at the Capital Heights, Md., firehouse to receive "reports" on "developments."

Leslie L. Altmann, president and general manager of the line, termed the stoppage "unauthorized" and in violation of a year's contract signed in May following another "jump" walkout. He said the strike came as a surprise to him, but indicated knowledge of

To Prevent Congestion

Trucking Strike Threat Causes Rail Embargo for N. Y. Area

By the United Press

The Association of American Railroads, acting in anticipation of an Eastern trucking strike at 12:01 a. m. Sunday, yesterday embargoed railroad freight shipments into the New York metropolitan area to prevent congestion at railway depots.

The association also declared an embargo on less-than-carload lots into Baltimore and said that similar action was possible at Richmond, Va., where truckmen's strikes also threaten. The ban applies to shipments that must be hauled by truck from railroad stations to consignees.

The truckmen have scheduled strikes at 12:01 a. m. Sunday to enforce wage and other demands in a new contract. Should they walk out, railroads in the East Central States must bear extra burden of the traffic normally carried by truck.

Exempted from the embargo are coal, coke, fuel oil, livestock, dairy products, fresh fruit and vegetables and newsprint which can be delivered to consignees' private sidings.

The embargo was announced as Federal conciliators worked to avert trucking strikes at Baltimore, Richmond and Albany, N. Y.

Federal conciliators have not yet entered the dispute at New York City where a walkout also would disrupt trucking in northern New Jersey.

More U. S. Aid To Ease State Welfare Crisis

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Welfare Commissioner Arthur James today advised Governor Tuck that additional Federal funds amounting to $550,000 for the nine months beginning October 1 will equal approximately the amount of additional State welfare funds necessary to meet original budget requests of the localities for the remainder of the year.

Where these funds were coming from has been the subject of much discussion in recent weeks and a number of district welfare meetings, including one held in Richmond yesterday, have been scheduled by the Mitchell commission on welfare to consider the matter.

Aid Hardship Cases

James advised the Governor in a memorandum that a supplementary allocation of $25,000, which is anticipated in unused funds returned to the State and from recoveries resulting from the Federal supplement to State funds, will be allocated to local departments for September to restore cuts in hardship cases.

A questionnaire sent out by James to all local welfare departments on August 8 asking for the minimum amounts of additional funds needed for September indicated that a supplementary allocation of $25,000 would take care of all needy cases.

James sent out the questionnaire when it became apparent on August 8 that the Mitchell Commission could not make the special study of the public assistance situation in Virginia, requested by the Governor at its initial meeting July 9, as quickly as had been hoped.

Much Larger U. S. Share

James said official information was received from the Social Security Administration on the amended Social Security Act on August 27 which revealed that Virginia would receive a much larger allocation than was apparent from earlier unofficial information.

Besides the $550,000 for the State budget, localities will receive $330,000 as their direct share of the extra Federal funds.

In the memorandum, James commented: "I hope the legislative commission will complete its special study, especially as to the validity of needs and grants not only for its help in determining State public assistance appropriations in the future, but in assisting the commission in its legislative interim study of the entire welfare program."

The $25,000 needed for the month of September was based on replies of 101 of the 124 local welfare departments to the questionnaire sent out by James.

Tuck to Attend Byrd Picnic Today

Berryville, Va., Aug. 30 (Spl.)—Gov. William Tuck of Virginia will be the guest of honor tomorrow at the renewal of the Byrd orchard picnics here after a suspension during the war years.

All apple growers in the area are invited to the picnic which will start with a chicken luncheon. Speakers will include Dr. J. R. Magness, chief of the division on fruit and vegetable crop diseases of the Department of Agriculture; Dr. Walter Hough, Winchester Research Laboratory, and Dr. John Hutchinson, president of VPI.

Drowned Seaman's Body Recovered

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Searchers today found the body of Elmer Lawrence Carter, steward's mate second class, USN, who drowned last night when he fell overboard from the assault transport USS Yancey, at the Norfolk Naval Station.

Son of Mrs. Mary Wick Carter of Garden City, Va., the 21-year-old enlisted man was throwing a football around on the deck of the ship when he plunged overboard. His death has been adjudged accidental and the body removed to the naval station hospital.

More Traction Claimed For New Tractor Tire

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Seiberling Rubber Co. today announced successful demonstration of a "plow contour" tractor tire which the company described as the first major development on farm tractor tires in 12 years.

The Seiberling Co. now is manufacturing the new tire in 20 different sizes.

Advantages of the new tire were reported as a 35 per cent greater traction, the ability of clean itself because of curved lugs which let dirt fall out and qualities which provide longer and smoother riding on the highway.

Cacapon Park Head Shifted to Charleston

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Aug. 30 (Spl.).—Harry L. Sharpe, for two years superintendent of Cacapon State Park here, has been transferred to the parks division office at the State Capitol at Charleston by the State Conservation Commission, it was announced yesterday by Parks Chief Watt Powell.

He will be succeeded at Cacapon Park by Charles L. Long who has been superintendent at Tomlinson Run Park. The latter, in turn, is succeeded by W. Ralph Morrison of New Cumberland.

Owens Hearing Is Delayed in Md. Gun Battle

Galesville, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—A hearing date for William Owens, 58, Negro of Drury, Md., charged with shooting an Anne Arundel County policeman, will depend upon the policeman's condition, Magistrate Oscar E. Hartge said today.

Owens was taken into custody and charged after a shooting affray in which two county police—John J. Burl, 27, and Sergt. Homer Dawson, 38—were wounded late Wednesday night near Wayson's corner in Southern Anne Arundel County.

Burl suffered shotgun wounds in the face and chest and Dawson a 45-caliber bullet wound in his arm and thigh inflicted accidentally by a fellow officer.

Both are patients at the Annapolis Emergency Hospital, where their conditions were given as "fine" today.

Meanwhile, Owens was held at Anne Arundel County jail.

Va. Turkey Crop To Equal Record

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Virginia turkey growers are expected to produce an estimated 1,232,000 birds this year, a crop equal to the record of 1945.

This estimate was made yesterday by the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service of the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture which said that while Virginia hatcheries reported an increase of 10.7 per cent in the number of poults hatched as compared with last year, the size of the crop nevertheless was cut down by the loss of young turkeys due to cold, wet weather during the spring hatching season.

Md. Woman Found Shot, Is Declared Suicide

Reisterstown, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—Baltimore County police records listed today the death of Mrs. Eliane McCallister, 29, of Baltimore, found in her car near here with a bullet wound in the temple, as "apparent suicide." Chief Oscar M. Grimes reported.

A power company employe found the body yesterday when he investigated the car, which was parked in a field near here, about 200 yards off the road.

Grimes said that Mrs. McCallister had been reported missing by her husband on August 19 and police had been advised she was despondet and "might try to take her own life."

McClayton to Head Maryland Navy League

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—William R. McClayton, Baltimore food broker, was appointed president of the Navy League of Maryland and a direotor of the Navy League of the United States, President Ralph A. Bard of the National League announced last night.

He enlisted in the first World War, was promoted to lieutenant (jg) and remained in the naval reserve until 1921. He again entered the Navy in 1943 as a lieutenant commander, and was released from active duty in 1945 with the rank of commander.

Change of Venire Denied in Check Case

Winchester, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Judge Burr P. Harrison in Winchester Corporation Court has overruled a motion for change of venire, filed by C. Worthington Love, a former Winchester minister, recently indicted on a charge of issuing a check without sufficient funds to cover.

September 25 has been set as date for the trial. The charges were brought by a New York City bank.

City's Plumbing Job Goes Begging at $37.50

Salisbury, Md. Aug. 30 (AP).—With plumbers earning $100 a week in Salisbury, according to one official, the municipality is having difficulty filling the job of city plumbing inspector.

The job has been unfilled for two years, ever since the last plumbing inspector quit because the city wonuldn't raise his pay from $37.50 to $42.50 a week.

"Plumbers around here are making $100 a week," one official said. "We can't afford to pay anything like that kind of money."

State to Mark Completion of River Project

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—Clearing of the Pocomoke River channel in Wicomico and Worcester Counties—which began in 1840—will be completed next month, Donold Hanneman, Soil Conservation Service engineer, said today.

Completion of the undertaking, "largest drainage project east of the Mississippi," will be celebrated at a ceremony September 25, at which Governor O'Conor will be a principal speaker. He added that Maryland and Delaware State officials as well as representatives of the Federal Government also were expected to attend.

Work on the river started and stopped fitfully until 1939 when the Maryland part of the job began anew, Hanneman said.

He explained that the project consisted of shortening a 17-mile stretch to 14 miles, opening new channels to cut off sharp curves in the river, and moving more than a million cubic yards of earth.

He said farmers in the two counties now can drain their fields through 12 tributaries.

John I. Timmons, chairman of the district supervisors, said, "In view of the fertility of most of this wet land, costs of drainage improvement should easily be reaped in a short time with good crops from the drained fields."

5 Sugar Dealers Suspended in Md.

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—One sugar wholesaler and four retail grocers have been suspended from dealing in sugar for the duration of sugar rationing.

The Office of Price Administration issued the orders after hearings yesterday. B. K. Miller of Clinton, Md., wholesaler, was accused of accepting counterfeit ration stamps for 15,155 pounds of sugar.

The suspended retailers are: William F. Stemm, trading as Stemm Brothers, Winfield, Md.; and three Baltimore dealers, Joseph Ingun, Bruce W. Knauff and Jacob Zells.

W. E. Hauver in Race For Md. House Seat

Frederick, Md., Aug. 30 (Spl.).—J. Tyson Lee, Urbana, withdrew last night as a Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates and William E. Hauver, Myersville, was named to take his place on the ticket in November.

Hauver formally filed his candidacy with the Board of Election Supervisors after the Democratic State Central Committee had by resolution named him to fill the vacancy. In withdrawing from the race, Mr. Lee said business commitments since the primary in June make it necessary for him to permit another candidate to enter the field.

Auto Insurance Rates Boost Approved in Md.

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—Increases in automobile insurance rates averaging 10 per cent on bodily injury policies and 29 per cent on property damage liability have been approved by the State insurance commissioner, effective September 1, Commissioner Lawrence Ensor announced.

Hospital Drive Set

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—A campaign will be launched Monday in Anne Arundel County for $30,000 to be used to make up an operating deficit at the Emergency Hospital here. The campaign will continue through September.

29th Division Parley to Open In Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—A parade, dance, fashion show and the election of officers are on the program for more than 2,000 members of the Twenty-ninth Division Association and their wives holding their national convention here over the weekend.

Top-ranking officers who will be at the affairs include Maj. Gen. Norman D. Cota, one of the heroes of Omaha Beach on D-Day in Normandy, Gen. Jacob Devers, commander of the Army Ground Forces, and Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gearhardt, who commanded the Twenty-ninth Division on D-Day.

A business meeting and fashion show by the ladies' auxiliary followed by a banquet and dance are scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday's program includes a memorial service and servicemen's dance.

The association parade on Monday will be made up of contingents from Fort George G. Meade, various veterans' organizations and the Army Ground Forces band.

Other top-ranking officers expected at the convention are: Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, former commander of the division; Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, Second Army commander, and Brig. Gen. Henry C. Evans, formerly of the Twenty-ninth Division.

Court Refuses To Intervene In Party Row

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—A petition for a writ of mandamus which would have nullified the credentials of five delegates to the State Democratic Convention September 5 was dismissed in City Circuit Court today on the ground that the petitioners had not exhausted their remedies within the Democratic Party.

Judge Clyde H. Jacob ruled the petitioners were bound by the rules of the party inasmuch as they had presented their case as party members, and stated that until the remedies of the party have been exhausted, "the court has no power to act."

W. L. Parker, counsel for A. B. Roach, chairman of the city Democratic executive committee and defendant in the proceedings, had argued at the hearing that there were bodies within the party to which an appeal could have been taken.

Parker contended in a demurrer that the court lacked the power to inquire into such party procedures. He maintained that if the court should rule it did have such power, the five delegates still had been duly elected as there were only five qualified candidates for as many delegate places.

Frederick Academy To Mark Centennial

Frederick, Md., Aug. 30 (Spl.).—The 100th anniversary of the founding of the Frederick Academy of the Visitation in this city, will be observed September 24 and 25, it was announced today by the Mother Superior of the institution.

A pontifical high mass will open the two-day program with Bishop Laurence J. Shehan, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore and Washington as celebrant. He will be assisted by Rev. Francis McDermott, Philadelphia, and Rev. Charles Muth, Baltimore, relatives of nuns in the local convent of the Visitation Order. A check for approximately $5000 will be presented the Mother Superior by the Alumnae Association for improvements to the convent and academy property.

In Northern Va.
Vepco Aide Retires After 3 Decades

George L. Rosenberger, electrical engineer with the Virginia Electric & Power Co., in Alexandria, will retire today after more than 30 years of work in northern Virginia.

Rosenberger

Rosenberger has been with the Virginia Electric & Power Co., and its predecessors here, the Virginia Public Service Co., and the Alexandria Light & Power Co., since 1924. He was associated with this area's independent electric companies for 10 years before that and as general superintendent of the old Fairfax & Loudoun Light & Power Co., he built the first transmission line between Alexandria and Leesburg, Va., in 1922.

Rosenberger earlier worked with the Southern Colorado Power Co., and with the Tennessee Power Co., and in other parts of the United States. He is an associate of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

He was born in Culpeper County, Va., and observed his sixty-eighth birthday on August 25.

Maryland Airline Granted Another Time Extension

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—Pan-American Airways, Inc., will have until December 1 to start operating its proposed services to points in Maryland.

The Public Service Commission yesterday granted extension of the starting date on petition from the company which mentioned difficulties in obtaining planes and lack of airports as cause of delay. It was the second postponement.

The airline is authorized to operate scheduled flights to Baltimore, Annapolis, Easton, Cambridge, Crisfield, Chestertown, Westminster, Frederick, College Park, Havre De Grace, Bel Air, Elkton, Centreville and Brandywine.

Bandit Gets $140 But Takes Beating

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—Brandishing an unloaded revolver, a youthful Negro bandit held up a drugstore last night and escaped with $140, after taking a beating from two of his victims.

Samuel C. Cohen, proprietor of the shop, reported to police the bandit entered his shop, and forced him, his wife, and two friends into a back room after emptying the cash register.

Just as the man was turning his attention to the safe, Cohen and Jacob Baker, a friend, took a lunge at him, threw him to the floor, and Mrs. Cohen began belaboring his head with the revolver that fell from the bandit's hand.

He managed to break away and flee with the $140, but left a blood-stained blue cap and the revolver, Cohen reported.

Named to Academy Staff

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—John A. C. Keith of Warrenton has been named to the teaching staff of Norfolk Academy. From 1934 until 1942 Keith taught history and English at the Stuyvesant School at Warrenton, at which time he received a commission in the Naval Reserve. He now holds the rank of lieutenant commander.

City Aroused, $5000 Offered In Attack Case

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—While indignant citizens raised to $5000 the reward posted for capture of an unknown thug who Tuesday night beat, stabbed and left for dead a Richmond socialite, Ann Maria Fowlkes, 24, the Richmond Police Department recalled members of its wartime auxiliary force to help comb the fashionable West End for suspects.

A $2300 increase to an earlier reward fund was guaranteed by the Hampton Gardens Citizens Association at an "indignation meeting" held last night.

Following this action, the residents moved to call on other civic clubs in the Westhampton area to sponsor a request that the city furnish additional street lights and police protection. "Our women and children are terrified since this thing happened," a spokesman reported.

The woman, whose condition at a local hospital was described as serious, told police she had been followed by a Negro as she walked from a street car to visit friends and that he had seized, gagged her, then dragged her to a lot where he slashed her throat and abdomen with a rusty paring knife. Then telling her she was "only playing dead" when she feigned death, he beat her into unconsciousness with a brick and a piece of lumber. Later, her cries attracted a passing motorist.

Police said the attacker was described by the girl as being about 5 feet 4 or 5 inches tall, and of a "dark chocolate" complexion. Richmond police quoted Miss Fowlkes as saying the man told her "I don't want to have to hurt you," but that he was "going to have to kill you" to get away with his crime. Chief of Detectives O. D. Garton said that unquestionably the motive was attempted rape, but that so far police had no medical report.

Chief of Police E. H. Organ said if an arrest was made a warrant would be issued charging assault with intent to kill.

Meanwhile, Detective Capt. O. D. Garton said more than 60 leads were being investigated by police today in an effort to apprehend the assailant.

21 Liberty Ships At Hampton Roads Are Up for Sale

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Twenty-one liberty ships are now immobilized in Hampton Roads as part of a fast growing fleet being set aside by the Maritime Commission for purchase by foreign governments.

Representatives of the French, Italian and the Netherlands governments have been here to inspect some of the ships which are up for sale, and Chinese and Turkish representatives are coming to look at the vessels.

Liberty ships, which were built at a war cost of $1,728,590 each, will be offered for sale at a floor price of $544,506. Under the terms of the Ship Sales Act of 1946 no dry cargo vessel, except a Liberty type vessel, may be sold at less than thirty-five per cent of the domestic war cost and no tanker may be sold at less than fifty per cent of the domestic war cost.

Loss Tops $40,000 In Farmville Fire

Farmville, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin early this morning destroyed two buildings and damaged two others in Farmville's downtown district.

Completely destroyed were Franklin's Main st. garage, containing four cars and one truck, and Clark's filling station and restaurant.

A building occupied by C. F. Moring, distributor for the Lynchburg Steam Bakery, was heavily damaged by the flames and plate-glass windows in the Farmville Manufacturing Co., across the street from the blaze, were cracked by the heat and water.

The fire, which started about 1 a. m., was brought under control in an hour. Damage was estimated as exceeding $40,000.

Referendum Is Set On Tobacco Quotas

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—A referendum on continuing burley tobacco marketing quotas has been set for Friday, October 25.

Production and marketing administration committeemen from burley growing States first voted to hold the referendum October 18, but later decided to set it for a week later because the date conflicted with the agricultural outlook conference scheduled in Washington.

The quotas, expiring this year, may be reestablished for one or three years or discontinued by a two thirds vote of the growers.

Court-Martial Still Studying Sima Verdict

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—The court-martial which tried Lieut. William R. Sima, sr., suspended Naval Academy band leader, adjourned today without reaching a verdict.

It will reconvene tomorrow at 9 a. m. to continue deliberating on the 10 charges against Sima, including perjury, extortion falsehood, and violating several Navy regulations.

If no decision is reached in the case by tomorrow noon, it was indicated the court would adjourn until Tuesday.

Under Navy court-martial procedure, the trial court merely announces the findings of innocence. Any other findings and sentence are forwarded to the governing authority for review.

The Secretary of the Navy was the convening authority in the Sima case.

Former Va. Slave, 108, Dies in W. Va. Hospital

Williamson, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Sarah Tatum, a former slave said by her son to be about 108 years old, died yesterday in a hospital where she had been a patient for seven weeks with a fractured hip suffered in a fall.

Eighty-five-year-old Sam Tatum said his mother was born about 1938 in slavery in Virginia. The son also said his mother's father died only five years ago, claiming to be 120 years old.

Mrs. Tatum was survived by two sons, one daughter and a brother, Miles, of Stuart, Va.

Grimes Apple Harvest Near in W. Va. Area

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 30 (Spl.).—Shipment of Grimes Golden apples, first of the major commercial crops in this belt, will begin within 10 days, growers said today. Some little spot picking—fruit that seems nearer maturity than the bulk of the crop—is being done now; but the tree-ripened fruit will not be ready for more than a week.

Fruit shipped in recent weeks has not been bringing ceiling prices, and the demand has been generally off.

Two Va. Historical Groups to Combine

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today approved a merger of the Virginia Historical Society, chartered by the General Assembly of Virginia in 1834, with the Confederate Memorial Association, a Mississippi corporation, operator of Battle Abbey.

The merger corporation will be known as the Virginia Historical Society.

Navy Captain's Wife, Daughter Buried

Boonsboro, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—Funeral services were held here today for Mrs. Doris Elizabeth Smith English, 37, and her daughter, Roberta, 3, who were found dead Monday in their gas-filled Arlington (Va.) apartment.

Mrs. English, wife of Navy Capt. Robert Allen English, now overseas, was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert S. Smith of Cumberland, formerly of Boonsboro.

Oyster Season To Be Started In Md. Waters

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—The Maryland oyster season in most countries will open Sunday, the department of tidewater fisheries announced today.

David H. Wallace, executive secretary to the department, said "until the catch of the first three or four days has been recorded, we cannot estimate this year's output."

September 1 openings include Kent, Queen Anne, Talbot and Anne Arundel Counties.

September 15 will usher in the season in Somerset, Wicomico County, except for the Nanticoke area and the lower part of the Potomac River.

The season will begin October 1 in the upper part of the Potomac River, Dorchester County except in the Choptank area, and tributaries of the Potomac.

The dredging season in the Chesapeake Bay in the Choptank area will not open until November 1.

Lowered salt content in the upper bay last year resulted in poor oysters, but general production on which taxes were paid reached approximately 2,500,000 bushels.

The region of poor oysters included Anne Arundel County, Chester River and the Rock Hall sections.

Despite these conditions, last year's crop was 70,000 bushels greater than the preceding one.

Va. Court Upholds Two-Year Sentence In Snakebite Death

Wise, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—A defense motion to set aside the jury verdict convicting Cult Leader Harvey O. Kirk of involuntary manslaughter in the snakebite death of his wife has been overruled by Judge George Morton in Wise County Circuit Court.

Kirk, convicted August 13, was sentenced to two years in the State penitentiary. V. B. Tate, defense counsel, indicated the case may be appealed.

Mrs. Anna S. Kirk gave premature birth to a stillborn child two days after she had been bitten by a rattlesnake in a "faith" religious demonstration and died a few hours later.

Kirk was jointly indicted with three other men on a charge of murder. The case against the other men has been continued to a later term of court.

Fauquier Names 18 Delegates

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Fauquier County Democrats at a mass meeting here last night named 18 delegates to the State Democratic nominating convention and instructed them to support Judge Howard W. Smith as long as his name is before the convention.

Fauquier is one of the counties in Judge Smith's home district—the Eighth. Each of the elected delegates will be entitled to one-half a vote.

Wreck Ended Wild Auto Pursuit in Streets of District

An 18-year-old Army private who went AWOL from Texas to see his wife here before going overseas, was sent to jail for 30 days yesterday after leading police in a 70-mile-an-hour chase through Washington.

He was one of thre espeedsters given jail terms in this area. Other traffic developments included accidents in which two children, 3 and 4 years old, were injured.

The AWOL soldier was Donald E. Clark of 4324 Alabama ave. se., who received a jail sentence although he had no record of any offenses.

"Why did you go so fast?" asked Judge Aubrey Fennell of Traffic Court.

Wife Sobs in Court

"I just didn't want to get caught, I guess," said Clark.

"Are you going to resort to means that endanger the lives of others just so that you won't get caught?" asked the judge.

Clark remained silent.

Clark's wife, Clara, 18, began sobbing in the courtroom. Judge Fennell deliberated silently for three minutes. He then sentenced Clark to 30 days straight jail for reckless driving and fined him $50 or 10 days for leaving after colliding, and $50 or 10 days for driving without a permit.

Motorcycle Policeman John Bush told the court he chased Clark more than 3 miles, during which time he "stopped clocking him at 70 miles an hour because then I began watching the road." The chase began at Highway Bridge and ended at 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., where the car struck a tree. The four persons in the Clark car were uninjured.

Faces Court-Martial

Defense Attorney Thomas Ahern pleaded that the episode occurred only because of Clark's "anxiety to get home to see his wife."

As soon as Clark leaves jail, he must face a court martial by military authorities on a charge of being AWOL.

Also, Clark is liable to prosecution by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on charges of violating the Dyer Act. Police here say they are told by Texas authorities that the car Clark used was stolen in Texas. Clark denies this, saying that he was loaned the car by his commanding officer for $100.

In the midst of the court hearing, word was received from military authorities that Donald E. Clark was still at his base at San Antonio. Police here said the military was mistaken.

Driver Given 60 Days

James F. Hampson, 23, of Riverdale, was sentenced to serve 60 days in the Rockville jail when he was unable to pay fines totaling $135 on three traffic counts in Silver Spring Police Court. He was charged with speeding, passing three stop signs and failing to change the address on his driver's permit.

Hampson was arrested after a 90-mile-an-hour chase through Takoma Park and ending at Grant Circle. Both Washington and Takoma Park police cooperated in chasing Hampson whose car stopped after jumping the curb, narrowly missing two trees.

In the third court case, Willie Q. Pulley, 36, no fixed address, was given 60 days jail and a choice of paying $300 or serving 90 days more on charges of driving while drunk and failing to have a driver's license.

Automobile Overturns

Police said they arrested Pulley August 22 after his car bumped another automobile, then glanced off so that he skidded 93 feet, 35 of which were ver the curb. He then struck a tree and his vehicle climbed six feet in the air and overturned over an embankment. The accident occurred at Massachusetts ave. and Macomb st. Only Pulley was injured. He is now in jail under indictment on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile.

Riding in a taxicab with her mother, 3-year-old Judith Deering opened the door and fell out, police said. She was picked up by her mother, Mrs. Clare Deering, and taken to Garfield Hospital where she was treated for head injuries. Judith was reported in serious condition.

Running across the street after he had bought an ice cream cone from a vender, Donald Cryer, 4, of 743 Howard rd. se. was struck by a dump truck operated by Thomas Jones, 2514 I st. nw., police said. Donald was taken to Gallinger Hospital, treated for cut and bruises and released.

Rice for Starving

LSM Shoots Rapids of Yangtze

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A Navy landing ship has twice shot the 130-mile Yangtze River rapids to carry rice to famine areas, the Navy Department said yesterday.

Asked by the Chinese government to help get desperately needed rice from Chungking down the Yangtze to the famine-ridden area of Hankow, the Navy chose the LSM as the craft best suited to the job. LSM 4700, commanded by Lieut. (j. g.) Robert J. Shields, jr., was loaded with penicillin and aviation gasoline for a test run from Shanghai to Chungking.

As a result, the Navy Department said, the Chinese government is negotiating with the United States for the purchase of a number of surplus LSM's for use on the upper Yangtze. This stretch of river, with deep gorges, rocks, foaming rapids, eddies and whirlpools, has been a menace to navigation for centuries.

Chinese Method Slow

"The traditional Chinese method of climbing the rapids is low and uncertain," the Navy said. Foot paths have been carved in the side of the cliffs. Coolies with ropes drag sampans and junks over the rapids by sheer manpower, while the crews fend off menacing rocks with poles."

Describing the trial run of LSM 470, the Navy said:

"The landing craft completed the easy run up the broad lower reaches of the Yangzte to Hankow in four days, but took three more days to reach Ichang, as a result of having to anchor each night because of lack of navigational aids on the river.

Higher Water Awaited

"At Ichang, Capt. Paul Hannish, English pilot of the upper Yangzte for more than 30 years, joined the vessel. The upper river was at its lowest levelin more than 25 years at the time, and the '470' had to wait 13 days for a rise in the river.

"The '470' weighed anchor at Ichang on April 30 and made the run through the 130 miles of rapids in three days, arriving at Chungking on May 3. As the first American naval vessel to penetrate the upper Yangzte since the start of the war, the ship was greeted with fireworks and flowers."

Since then, the Navy said, the '470' has made two successful trips between Chungking and Hankow.

WSA Prepares To Mark End Of Its Career

By International News Service

The War Shipping Administration, whose wartime job might have been called "Operation Lifeline," yesterday was preparing to write an end to its dramatic history.

The WSA, under a congressional directive, will be merged with the United States Maritime Commission September 1.

A record of emergency ship operation without parallel, a lifeline of men and supplies spanning most of the world's deep waters, was achieved by WSA.

At the time of the Pearl Harbor attacfl, the United States Merchant Marine consisted of only 1586 ocean-going vessels of 1000 gross ons or over.

Operated 4286 Ships

Through purchase and requisition and, more spectacularly, through the gigantic wartime shipbuilding program, the nation's merchant fleet rose to a total of 5410 ships, of which 4286 were operated by WSA.

The late President Roosevelt created WSA by executive order on February 7, 1942. Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, Maritime Commission chairman, was named administrator. When Admiral Land resigned after the war he was succeeded by Capt. Granville Conway.

During the war, more than 268 million long tons of cargo moved overseas from United States ports, 75 per cent of it in WSA-controlled ships.

After victory, WSA's task did not end. Millions of troops still had to be brought home and millions of tons of relief cargoes were dispatched to war-ravaged countries.

Total Reduced

The total of WSA vessels has been gradually reduced and it is estimated that by next December 31 less than 700 ships will remain under Government operation.

Of the merchant craft disposed of during the year, 1593 went into the Maritime Commission's reserve fleet, 700 were interim-chartered to private operators, 935 were turned back to owners from whom they had been requisitioned, 212 were transferred to the Army and Navy, 56 were sold for scrap, and 51 were lost from all causes.

2 GOP Nominees Report No Outlays

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Earle Lutz, Richmond, Third District; Lawrence Michael, Arlington, Eighth District, and William L. Creasy, Fifth District, Republican nominees for Congress, have filed statements with the State board of elections reporting they had no expenses in winning their nominations.

Union Vote Called At Wall St. Firm

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The New York State Labor Relations Board today ordered an election by employes of the Wall Street firm of Harris, Upham & Co., within 20 days, after deciding it had jurisdiction in a collective bargaining suit brought by the United Financial Employes, an independent union, against the firm.

The Rev. William J. Kelley, chairman of the board, said the decision was the first in 30 cases brought by the union against financial concerns which argued that disputes should be handled by the National Labor Board.

Two weeks ago, following a walkout of New York Stock Exchange employes, who empowered the union "to strike at any time," the union announced a Nation-wide drive to recruit 50,000 members in the stock and commodity markets throughout the United States.

AFL Seamen May Strike on Both Coasts

By the Associated Press

AFL maritime unions told the Wage Stabilization Board yesterday they would call out their seamen on both coasts unless the board modified its decision limiting AFL sailors to CIO wage increase levels.

The notices were sent to WSB Chairman W. Willard Wirtz by John Hawk, vice president of the Seafarers International Union, and by Harry Lundeberg, secretary-treasurer of the Sailors Union of the Pacific.

Lundeberg's message said he was polling his union for a strike next Wednesday, September 4. Hawk said his union had reaffirmed its intention to strike and was ready to walk out.

Both AFL unions objected to Wirtz that the WSB ruling cut down the terms of agreement reached with ship owners through collective bargaining. Lundeberg contended the CIO wage terms approved by the board had been established by "government fiat."

The unions asked Wirtz for board reconsideration of its decision which limited the SIU and SUP wage increases to the $17.50 a month approved by the board earlier for ablebodied seamen, members of the CIO National Maritime Union.

The SUP had negotiated a $22.50 increase, the SIU a $27.50 increase. The board action had limited to the CIO level the amount of wage increases for which shipowners can charge up to the Government.

New County Fire Station to Aid Beallsville Area

A proposed fire station for the recently organized Upper Montgomery County Volunteer Fire Department, to be located at Beallsville, will provide increased fire protection to the northern part of the county.

The first of three pieces of fire-fighting apparatus for the new department has already been ordered, Capt. W. S. Perkins, president, said.

Plans call for the erection of a modern firehouse architecturally in keeping with the Maryland tradition, which will have a large meeting hall and kitchen for community use.

A fried chicken and ham dinner is scheduled for September 6 to raise funds for the new department, Mrs. Charles Kohlhoss, president of Ladies Auxiliary, announced. Mrs. C. M. Tipton is chairman of the dinner committee.

Western Union Pay Increases Recommended

By the United Press

A Government fact-finding board recommended wage increases of 10 to 16½ cents an hour for 57,000 Western Union employes yesterday, after rejecting the company's argument that it would be unable to pay the raise.

The board recommended a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour for messengers and 12½ cents for nonmessengers. In addition, the nonmessenger employes, represented by AFL and CIO unions, are to receive an average of 4 cents an hour per man to eliminate inequities or to maintain existing differentials. All adjustments are to be retroactive to June 2.

The board refused to rule on whether the company should have rate relief to offset the pay increases. It said that this was a matter for the Federal Communications Commission.

August Action

The recommended wage increases are comparable to those made in the telephone and other industries last August.

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach appointed the board to head off a threatened strike last May.

The board's rejection of the company's "inability to pay" contention contrasted sharply with the action of another fact-finding board in last winter's General Motors' strike. That panel refused to consider a union demand that GM's "ability to pay" should be the determining factor in settling the dispute.

Refuse Argument

Chairman Saul Wallen and Thomas Donahue of the Western Union fact-finding board refused to consider Western Union's claimed inability to pay as the absolute determinant of whether to recommend a wage increase. Sidney L. Cahn, third member, went further and said that the issue should not be considered.

"The ability to pay principle cannot be applied as an absolute determinate of wages," Wallen and Donahue said. "To apply it as an absolute determinate would result in a wage scale that fluctuates with the rise and fall of business profits."

If that principle were followed, they said, inefficient producers would receive the benefit of lower wage scales than efficient ones, regardless of the fact that the value of the services rendered is the same."

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 30 (Spl.).—Thomas McHobart Lewis, 49, race horse owner and trainer, who made his home here, died yesterday morning. He was a native of Buckhannon, W. Va. His wife, Mrs. Wave Echard Lewis, and a son, Pat, member of the 1946 high school graduating class here, survive.

Judge Imposes Limitation On Woman's Hatred for Man

Newark, N. J., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—A woman may hate men only to a limited extent and remain sane and the limit is reached when she seeks a scientific substitute for man as the progenitor of children, a Chancellory Court decision said today.

Vice Chancellor John O. Bigelow voided the will of Miss Louisa Strittmatter, persistent spinster, because she "regarded men with an insane hatred and looked forward to the scientific day when woman would bear children without the aid of men."

Miss Strittmatter, who died December 9, 1944, cut off two male relations without a penny and left her $15,000 to the National Women's Party for the advancement of feminism. The male relations were joined by a female cousin in bringing the suit.

Bigelow took note in his decision that "in 1937 she (Miss Strittmatter) wrote: 'It remains for feministic organizations to make exposure of women's 'protectors' and 'lovers' for what their vicious and contemptible selves are.'

"I think," the decision continued, by way of comment, "it was her paranoiac condition, especially her insane delusions about the male, that led her to leave her estate to the National Women's Party. The result is that the probate should be set aside."

Part of Miss Strittmatter's estate was in gold coins buried in the cellar of her home. She never used a bank because banks were operated by men. She had searched without success for a bank operated by a woman.

Troops of U. S. In Korea Await Unified Nation

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

American troops will stay in Korea as long as they are needed to help achieve a united and independent Korean nation, the State Department announced in a formal statement yesterday.

The statement said that the United States would be ready at any time to resume the meetings of the joint American-Russian Commission, which were cut off on May 8, when the Russian commander in northern Korea stalked out of a meeting.

In the meantime, said the State Department, the United States will do everything possible to improve the welfare and standard of living of the people in the American occupation zone.

On its surface, much of yesterday's statement was merely an answer to repeated charges by the Moscow radio that the United States is in Korea for "imperialistic" reason. It emphasized that the United States seeks no territory or economic advantages from its occupation of Korea, and is there simply to help establish a free and democratic government chosen by the Koreans themselves

Cooperation Desired

Underlying the statement, however, was the desire of American officials here and in Korea to resume consultation and cooperation with the Russians.

American officials have felt ever since last May that it was a blunder to have let the commission adjourn sine die, without any date or even procedure for resuming its meetings.

In the intervening months the Russian-American occupation boundary along the thirty-eighth parallel has become an iron collar choking the economic life of Korea. Trade and communications between the zones have come to a virtual standstill. The welfare of both zones has been suffering in consequence.

Communist activity in the American zone has suggested that the Russians might be planning a political coup, in the belief that the America noccupation troops would soon be withdrawn. Yesterday's American statement was intended to disabuse Koreans and Russians alike of any such belief.

Fletcher, Castell Owners of Radio Station WRAL

Arlington's new radio station, WARL, which is expected to open soon, is owned and managed by Frank U. Fletcher and R. Kilbourne Castell, it was announced yesterday.

Fletcher, who lives in Fairlington, was formerly an attorney with the Federal Communications Commission, and his father is the owner of WRAL in Raleigh.

Castell, of Arligton Villege, was formerly in the sandwich business, dealing with Government cafeterias and east coast railroads. Both men are now busily directing the establishment of the three-studio station headquarters at 3102 N. Tenth st.

The two new radio executives first discussed the proposed station before the war, but the idea was forced into the background until now. Fletcheer served three years as an Army ordnance captain.

Both men said they planned to make the 1000 watt independent station "a vital part of Arlington."

Tractors Marked For Yugoslavia Meant for Greece

UNRRA heeadquarters declared yesterday that 19 tractors awaiting shipment at Mobile are consigned to Greece—not Yugoslavia.

Asked why they were labeled "UNRRA Yugoslavia," an UNRRA official told a reporter that the designation probably was a "manufacturer's error."

He insisted the tractors never were intended for Yugoslavia; that they had been earmarked for Greece all along.

The forum class of the Dauphin Way Methodist Church in Mobile, Ala., adopted a resolution Wednesday protesting against shipping such equipment to Yugoslavia until after the iTto government "demonstrates its friendship for this Nation," and threatened to take legal action to halt it, if necessary.

Harvest Show Set for Sept. 22

The fourth annual Harvest Show oof the Civitan Club of Bethesda will be held at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, September 22, it was announced yesterday.

The show, built around the theme, "A year's harvest of community interests," will feature products of homes, clubs, shops and gardens of the area.

Edward K. Bender is general chairman of the show and Comdr. N. E. Disbrow heads the sponsoring committee composed of John Cerniglia, Donn Reed, D. M. Tune and L. M. Northern. Other committee chairmen are: Capt. J. A. Guard, judges; Mrs. J. H. Sidebottom, scoring and tabulation; Mrs. Robert Thomas, artistic arrangements; Mrs. George A. Smith, schedules, and Mrs. Frank Wilcox, educational exhibits.

Children Quizzed In Brawling of Baby

Detroit, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Police questioned neighborhood children today in the belief one or more may have branded a set of initials found on the left shoulder of little William J. Kelly, 17 months old.

The baby, missing from his play pen, was found crying on a sidewalk near his home late Wednesday. The initials A. S. were on the left shoulder, with the S marked backwards.

Yugoslavia, U. S. Account Not Closed Yet

By the Associated Press

The account with Yugoslavia over the plane attacks is not closed yet, Undersecretary of State Acheson said yesterday—the United States will render a bill for indemnity.

The Government is waiting until all particulars are in, he told a news conference, before preparing its claims arising out of the loss of five lives and two planes downed in Yugoslav territory.

Moreover, Acheson said, he does not know whether Marshal Tito has put into writing, as promised, the expression of sorrow over the incidents and the assurances they will not recur which he gave orally to Ambassador Richard C. Patterson. The State Department is trying urgently to find out.

Meanwhile, detention by Yugoslavia of more than 60 Americans was reported in diplomatic quarters to have prompted the exchange of several notes between this country and Marshal Tito's government.

State Department officials said that most of the persons held are natives of Yugoslavia who returned to their homeland during the depression after becoming United States naturalized citizens. This country's chief objection has been Yugoslavia's refusal to permit American officials to communicate with them and determine their present status.

The cases filowed the line of between 50 and 60 Americans detained in Poland, about whom notes also have been exchanged.

Honor Guard Watches

Rome, Aug. 30 (AP).—A 24-hour honor guard of American military police stood watch tonight in the small stone-covered chapel at Ciampino Airport beside the coffins containing the bodies of the five American airmen shot down in Yugoslavia.

High British and American military and diplomatic officials participated in the brief and solemn ceremony that marked the arrival of thte bodies today from Udine. The bodies will be flown to the United States for burial.

Hit-Run Kills Smoke-Eating Fire Mascot

Click-up was a real fire dog—she had smoke in her blood.

The firemen knew that right from the start. Last March an alarm went off just as the tiny Dalmatian was being given to Capt. Elmer Stein.

Notknowing what to do with tthe pup, Captain Stein stuck her in his pocket and responded to the alarm, a rooming house fire in the 900 block of 13th st. nw.

While fighting the flames the smoke-eaters wondered what to call their new mascot. "What's the matter with Click-up?" one firefighter said.

So that was it, Click-up, the firemen's name for a fire alarm.

Several weeks later the firemen were playing with the sprawling puppy in their quarters when an alarm came in. They dashed for the "pole hole" and slid down the 29-foot brass bar to man their trucks.

Followed Men

Click-up came right behind them. She was laid up for a month, but she was learning the ways of firemen.

At first she slept in a fireman's helmet, but as she grew larger, Click-up was bedded down at night on the running board of a fire truck with a "running coat" over her.

Always she answered the alarms, standing on the fire truck and barking excitedly as the moaning siren and clanging bell cleared traffic.

Between runs she made friends around the fire house where she lived at Connecticut ave. and Porter st. nw. The children took her for walks and came around to play with her. For blocks around no neighbor needed to look at the brass name plate to know it was Click-up passing by.

"Everybody Loved Click-up"

Even strangers took a proprietary interest in the big black-and-white mascot. Once a long, shiny car driven by a chauffeur pulled up in front of the firehouse and an elderly lady stepped out to leave some bones for the favorite.

As Captain Stein said, "Everybody loved Click-up."

Early yesterday morning a newsboy walking along the deserted avenue across from the firehouse whistled to the dog. Click-up started over, then remembered the frequent admonitions from the firemen to stay out of the street. She turned back.

At that moment a car bore down on the mascot. Click-up didn't have a chance, she was killed instantly. The newsboy said the driver could have missed the dog if he had wanted to. Maybe, but they'll never kno[illegible] driver kept on going.

Middletown Water Bond Vote Set Oct. 1

Winchester, Va., Aug. 30. (Spl.). An application by the Town Council of Middletown, asking for a bond issue election, has been approved by Judge Burr P. Harrison. The election was set for October 1.

The bond issue for a water system is not to exceed $25,000 and would be paid back over a period not exceeding 25 years.

Held on Attack Charge

Berryville, Va., Aug. 30.—Bayliss Tracey, Millwood Negro, has been held for action by the grand jury on a charge of criminally assaulting his 14-year-old daughter. Tracey, who had to be removed to another jail for safe keeping, following his arrest, was given a preliminary hearing yesterday. Bond was fixed at $2000.

Chiang Asked To Drop Key Area Demand

Nanking, Aug. 30 (AP).—Demands that Chiang Kai-shek guarantee issuance of a general cease-fire order, and abandon his insistence on Communist evacuation of key areas, were advanced by the Communists today as the price for participating in the new Stuart peace committee.

Gen. Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator and a member of the committee of five(handed the demands to General Marshall, special American envoy.

Marshall left by plane immediately for Kuling to present them to Generalissimo Chiang. The government members of the committee which is headed by U. S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart also left for Kuling, summer capital.

Charging that the government wants to use the committee, only announced Thursday, "to stall for time," Communist Spokesman Wang Ping-man said:

"We understand the Kuling atmosphere is much more charged with war than peace. The military situation still is very tense on all fronts."

In North China, government troops occupied the Jehol province capital of Chengteh without a fight, reaching their objective in an offensive launched less than a fortnight ago.

Communist victories in central Kiangsu province, north of Shanghai, however, were stressed by a spokesman at Red headquarters at Yenan as likely to "have an important effect on the future course of the civil war." His remarks were broadcast.

The spokesman said 13 Nationalist brigades had been wiped out since July 13, when the Communists launched a counter-attack in Kiangsu.

Mrs. Moody Quits Arlington Group

The resignation of Mrs. Aletha Jane Moody as executive secretary of the Arlington Tuberculosis Association was announced yesterday by the association.

Mrs. Moody was the first full-time executive secretary and has served in that capacity since 1942. She will leave next week for China accompanied by her two sons, Jimmy, 11, and Michael, 6, to join her husband who is director of Chinese Civilian Relief for the American Red Cross. Her successor will be named in the near future, the association said.

U. N. Membership Suggested for Japan

Tokyo, Aug. 30 (AP).—Representative John E. Sheridan (D., Pa.), acting chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, expressed the hope today that Japan would become a member of the United Nations "and take her proper place in world affairs."

Sheridan, who is inspecting United States Army forces in Japan, spoke at a conference for the Japanese press.

Schuschnigg Says 1 of Big 4 Exiled Him

Moltrasio, Italy, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, white-haired pre-Anschluss chancellor of Austria, said today he had been exiled from his native country by one of the four occupying powers.

Schuschnigg

Schuschnigg declined to say which power barred his return to Austria, but it was believed to be Russia.

"I don't have any immediate plans to return, because I don't have permission to go," he said at his beautiful villa in this little village four miles northwest of Como, where he lives with his wife and five-year-old daughter.

He said he had "highest praise" for the present Austrian administration.

He sat today in an easy chair, smiling, his white shirt open at the throat, his feet in tennis shoes resting on a hassock.

"I have been absent from my country for eight years," he said in flawless English, "and I am not in a position to judge the situation from abroad. In addition, I don't want to mix in politics while in a foreign country.

"I always thought refugee politics harmful to countries."

He denied reports that he had been hired by UNRRA as economic advisor for Austria and said it probably originated from the fact that his 20-year-old son, also named Kurt, is employed in an UNRRA repatriation office at Turin, Italy.

Woman, 76, Found Cause of Outbreak Of Typhoid in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Twenty health department employes, working steadily for 36 days, have found the source of an outbreak of typhoid fever in the Washington Heights area in upper Manhattan during which 19 cases were reported.

City Health Commissioner Weinstein said vegetables in a grocery store had become contaminated by leakage from plumbing in an apartment above the store occupied by a 76-year-old woman, known to be a typhoid carrier.

Epidemiologists learned that all of those stricken ate food from the store purchased about July 8. On that date, investigators learned, there had been a break in a plumbing line and some fruit and vegetables had become contaminated.

Found in Denmark

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 30 (AP).—The newspaper Information said today that a diamond-studded platinum wristwatch which Hitler gave to his mistress, Eva Braun, was in Denmark and might be sent to the United States.

The report said British and Danish intelligence agents found the watch on a German SS officer and handed it over to the Danish army. The watch bore Hitler's dedication to the woman he eventually married before their assumed suicides.

Sweden Reported Rejecting U. S. Protest on Red Trade Pact

Stockholm, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Reliable sources said tonight that Sweden had "politely reected" a United States protest against a proposed Swedish-Russian agreement involving 415 million dollars in credits and trade.

These sources said Sweden considers the agreement under consideration well within the existing international framework for such agreements. On that ground, they said, Sweden had turned down the American contention that an agreement with Russia would conflict with the free trade program the United States is trying to get the United Nations to adopt.

The Swedish commercial magazine "Affaersvaerlden" reported Sweden had signed an agreement with the United States for one million tons of Swedish iron ore, to be shipped to the Bethlehem Steel Corp. The magazine said the ore would be shipped within the year beginning September 1. The tonnage involved is twice what was shipped to the United States in a year before the war.

Apparently Russia and Sweden were on the verge of concluding the agreement, and informed sourcees said the American protest, made to Russia, as well as Sweden, createed a sensation in government circles here.

The agreement over which Russian and Sweden are dickering was reported to have originally involved a Russian offer of a five-year credit of 277 million dollars and a trade exchange of 138 million dollars over the same period. It would be the largest such agreement in Sweden's history.

Russians Deny Conflict

By the United Press

Russia has informed the United States that the pending 415-million dollar Russo-Swedish trade pact does not conflict with any Soviet "free trade" pledges to this Government, the State Department announced last night.

The Russian memorandum was issued in reply to an American note expressing concern that the bilateral agreement would conflict with the world-wide free trade agreement which the United States is trying to get the United Nations to adopt.

A similar note was dispatched to Sweden, and the two countries were asked to cancel the agreement if it restricts Sweden's trade freedom.

Russia's reply, the State Department said, merely informed this Government that Moscow believes the Swedish deal would have no effect on the multilateral trade provisions of the Soviet-American lend-lease accord of 1942.

No reply has been received as yet from Sweden.

U. N. Charter Gains Argentine Support

Chamber Also Votes Ratification of Chapultepec Act

Buenos Aires, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies today ratified the San Francisco United Nations Charter and the Chapultepec Inter-American Act, completing congressional action on both pacts unanimously ratified by the Senate, August 19.

The charter was ratified 95 to 39, and the act by 88 to 7, with 43 radical deputies not voting. Although the radicals favored the ratification, they abstained to avoid supporting the government.

The vote came shortly before noon, after the chamber had been in continuous session since 3:18 p. m. yesterday, with only a 90-minute dinner recess last night. Early this morning, drowsy legislators who had listened to 22 speeches resumed the debate.

Police guarded the Capitol during the long session to prevent incidents by anti-ratification demonstrators.

Peron Takes Over Meat

Buenos Aires, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Peron government has established itself by decree as the sole sales agent for the 350-million-dollar annual meat export business.

The decree, issued Tuesday, establishes prices the government will pay to foreign-owned packing plants through their own New York agents all over the world. The New York factors were elliminated by the decree.

A leading packer, who may not be quoted by name, said the packing companies were completely in ignorance over how the government proposed to conduct foreign sales.

It was learned that the government had established an "Argentine foreign trade institute" as its selling agent.

The situation was complicated by the fact that the British contract to buy all Argentina's export meat will expire at midnight Sunday. No renewal has been made because of differences over prices.

Storm Troops

British Say Reds Form Polish Army

London, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—A foreign office spokesman charged today "Communist storm troops" had been organized in Poland and that the opposition christian labor party had been liquidated and replaced by a Communist - controlled "stooge" organization.

At the same time, the war office announced Lieut. Gen. Wladyslaw Andres' Second Polish Corps and other disaffected Polish troops would be brought to the United Kingdom and invited to enlist in a resettlement corps under the British army.

Altogether, 130,000 Poles were affected by the war office's plans: 45,000 already in Britain; 55,000 in Italy under Andres, 20,000 in western areas of Germany; 7000 in the Middle East, and 2500 in France.

The British army's plan for the disaffected Polish soldiers who slipped out of their homelands during and after the German and Russian invasions to fight for the Allies will not improve relations with the Polish government. It almost certainly will protest against their military character.

Russian newspaper have charged that Anders is one of a number of Polish generals plotting against the new Polish government and the Soviet.

A war office spokesman emphasized that, "the primary objective of the corps is to place the members in permanent civilian work. To this end, they will be taught English and all training courses of the British army are open to them."

asked us if we could try them on espionage charges. After study of the files we found that we could not legally charge them with espionage.

Other Charges Drafted

"As a result we drafted other charges—I cannot remember what they were—and prepared to proceed with the trial.

"We then received instructions from the Counter - Intelligence Corps in Frankfurt that the drafting of charges was to be suspended until further notice. No charges ever were served on the Germans and cannot be served at present. I assume the Germans still are in jail, but I don't know definitely."

Formation of the "Free Germany National Committee" among German prisoners of war and refugees was announced in Moscow in July, 1943. Its purpose was said to be to help oust Hitler. The group was reported dissolved in November, 1945.

The American officers would not estimate how many members of the group were believed to be in this zone, or were suspected of pro-Soviet activities.

Policy Determines Treatment

One informant indicated that, in connection with the Stuttgart arrests, one Soviet officer involved in the spy ring's dealings had been allowed to return to Soviet territory.

"We'd like to be hard on them, but their treatment is a policy laid down by the State Department and military government," he said.

The official announcement on the recent arrests in Stuttgart said Kazmarek had declared: "It is clear we support the Soviet policy to the limit. A few of us in a small circle are more to them than a few divisions. When the east attacks, ministers will disappear in a hurry."

It added that Soviet officers in the Russian reparations commission were in touch with Kazmarek for some time and that all the Russians concerned since had gone back to Russia. Kazmarek, it added, first was hired by the United States military government in December, 1945, and his political activities attracted the attention of the Counter-Intelligence Corps.

Reed Suggests Sen. Johnson Run For President

Denver, Aug. 30 (AP).—Senator Clyde M. Reed, Kansas Republican, today advocated Colorado's Senator Edwin C. Johnson, a Democrat, as the democratic nominee for president. "He would make a stronger candidate and a stronger president if elected than Harry Truman," Reed declared.

"I don't think any candidate the Democrats nominate in 1948 could be elected, but if Ed wants to leave politics as he has announced, let him go out in a blaze of glory," he added.

Reed said at a press conference he believed any one of six Republicans could defeat President Truman. He named Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Gov. Earl Warren of California, former Gov. Harold L. Stassen of Minnesota, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and former Gov. John C. Bricker of Ohio.

"Everybody on the job is union except a couple of men on a subcontracting job started yesterday," Altman explained.

He said he had spoken to an AFL representative about the situation, but "told him I didn't know whether they were union or nonunion and I didn't care."

The nonunion workers were employed in installing a brake machine and hydraulic lifts, he said.

Veterans Charge Whitewashing Of Colonel Kilian

The American Veterans Committee yesterday accused the Army of whitewashing Col. James A. Kilian, wartime commander of the "rubber hose" guardhouse at Lichfield, England, and demanded a full congressional investigation of the Army's court-martial system.

Kilian was convicted by a United States military court at Bad Nauheim, Germany, of permitting Lichfield guards to club and punch American soldier prisoners. The court fined him $500 and reprimanded him.

The AVC expressed outrage at the "extremely mild" sentence passed on Kilian and asserted that the conduct of the trial "has dramatically demonstrated that a full dress congressional investigation of the Army court-martial system should be made."

"There is no doubt that at Lichfield treatment accorded American prisoners was subhuman beyond all concepts of justice, whether military or civilian," the veterans' group said.

Council declined by a six-to-three vote to invite Dmitri Manuilsky, Ukrainian foreign minister who flew here from Paris yesterday to press the charges, and Vassili Dendramis, Greek ambassador to the U.N., to the council table while the argument took place.

The motion required seven affirmative votes. Brazil, Australia, Russia, Mexico, the Netherlands, and Poland voted for it while the United States, United Kingdom and France were opposed. Egypt and China abstained.

Cadogan charged Grmyko with "constantly" misunderstanding or misrepresenting what he said. Cadogan said the Ukraine makes "general statements," accuses Greece of aggressive action without any facts and that Manuilsky then blames all of this on Britain without "giving us a single fact."

Objects to Manner

The British delegate said he did not want to obstruct the discussion of any matter but that he objected to the manner of "obtaining wide distribution of unsubstantiated charges."

He asked that the Ukraine submit a "more sober" document summarizing the case and presenting facts.

Cadogan and Van Kleffens said Gromyko had reversed himself, pointing out that while he was willing now to hear from Manuilsky before the case was on the agenda he opposed hearing the Iranian representative at a similar stage of the Iranian-Russian dispute in the Council last March.

ITALY

graph of Article 64 of the treaty, Italy would have a period of seven years from the effective date of the pact to pay off the 100 million dollars. Deliveries from current industrial production would not be made during the first two years.

These sources of payment are outlined in the second paragraph: Italian current production; and Hungary, subject to exceptions to be determined; a share of Italian factory and tool equipment designed for manufacture of war implements.

The commission also appointed a subcommittee to consider war damage claims of other nations against Italy. Members were the United States, Russia, France, Britain, Yugoslavia, Greece, Ethiopia, Czechoslovakia and Canada. Greece is asking $6,117,710,005 and Yugoslavia $1,300,000,000 from Italy.

Byrnes Defends Greece

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Alexander stoutly defended Greece against the Russian and Yugoslav attacks and Byrnes said it was incredible that the conference should refuse a hearing to Greece, "which furnished troops to aid us in victory."

The conference agreed with Byrnes and voted 12 to 7 to hear Greece at the next plenary meeting.

France supported the Russia bloc against the Western allies in this vote. The United States, Britain, Canada, China, Australia, Ethiopia, Greece, India, New Zealand, the Netherlands and South Africa voted for Greece. Belgium and Norway abstained.

The Big Four Foreign Ministers' deputies met far into the night in an attempt to agree on the method of handling agreements offered for the five peace treaties under consideration.

Arch MacDonald to Talk At Public Rally Sept. 3

Arch MacDonald, Democratic nominee for Congress in the Sixth Maryland District, will be the principal speaker at a public mass meeting to be held by the Independent Voters' Organization of Montgomery County in the Chevy Chase Methodist Church September 3, at 8 p. m.

Other speakers will include Dr. Louis H. Bean, economic and political analyst and author of "Ballot Behavior," and Mrs. Esther Peterson, a member of the IVO. Dr. Leroy A. Halbert, president of the organization, will preside. MacDonald is campaigning against the incumbent, Republican Representative J. Glenn Beall.

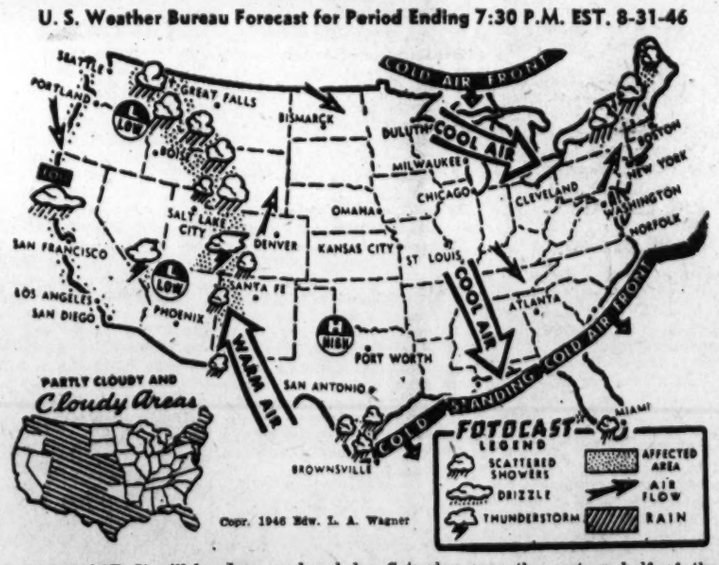
1500 U.S. Tomcats Slated For Polish Mouse Duty

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Some 1500 American tomcats soon may be hunting mice in Poland.

Robert L. Kendall, president of the American Feline Society, said today he was ready to send 1500 United States kitties to Poland in response to a request from that country for mousers. It's just a question now of whether the State Department will authorize plane travel, Kendall said.

National Weather Summary

U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast for Period Ending 7:30 P.M. EST. 8-31-46



24-HOUR FORECAST: It will be clear, cool and dry Saturday over the eastern half of the Nation, while west of the Ohio Valley there will be clear and warmer weather, to delight holiday travelers and those pleasure bent.

Light showers are indicated on the map for northeastern areas of extreme northern New England, for the southern tips of Texas and Florida and at widely scattered sections of the Rocky Mountain region. The Pacific Coast will have some morning drizzle or fog Saturday, but most of the West will otherwise have clear skies and comfortable temperatures.

Highest thermometer readings Saturday will range from 80 to 89 degrees in those areas west of the Ohio Valley to the Rockies. States west of the Continental Divide in the Southwest will have temperatures above 90 degrees, and be the warmest parts of the country, though Florida will also be warm and humid south of the cold air front.

The most influential pressure system on the map is the high shown in northern Texas. The cool Canadian air circulating around it is air-conditioning most of the United States. Of lesser importance, are the two low pressure areas shown, though they indicate the concentrations of warm and lighter weight air during the forecast period.

No part of the Nation is expected to have overcast skies during the first day of the holiday weekend for only partly cloudy conditions are forecast. (See inset chart.)

A rapidly moving low pressure center in Canada and not pictured on the map is helping to keep a circulation of cool dry air moving over the Nation from the Northland. This air flow pattern and the dominant high favor clear, dry weather and no large rain or shower condition is foreseen for the immediate future.

Socialists Want A Free People In Romania

Bucharest, Romania, Aug. 30 (AP).—The controlled press and radio ignored today a rally of the Socialist Party held last night at which speakers pointedly did not mention the name of Premier Petru Groza. The rally drew 30,000 persons.

The Socialist Party has been a member of the government bloc in the Russian-sponsored government. Ion Burca, Socialist Undersecretary of Interior, told the rally that "We want freedom for all, and even for our own Socialist Party." He said total freedom would come only when the people controlled the nation's economy.

The total lack of publicity for last night's meeting suggested that the speakers might have ignored directives.

A government communique was published saying citizens had 15 days to register for eletcions, which previously have been promised for the fall. The date may be set when Ministers return from Paris, where they have been pleading Romania's case before the Peace Conference.

PRICES

Porter declared the controls would not reduce the total of meat available but would spread the supply more evenly over the country.

The object, his statement said, was to make sure that legitimate slaughterers could get their share of available meat at ceiling prices.

"Conversely, it means that no operator can slaughter a disproportionate amount of livestock," Porter continued. "Every family and every section of the country has its right to a fair share of meat, regardless of the source of supply."

Step Called Important

He termed the restored slaughter program "a very important step in holding down black market operations," since it provides a check on the source of all meat. Each slaughterer is required to mark his product so it can be traced back to him if it finds its way into the black market.

An OPA spokesman said the new prices would follow "explicitly" the higher price recommendations of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. Those recommendations—amounting to orders—were issued Wednesday, overturning OPA's plans for restoring beef, pork and lamb ceilings near the June 30 levels.

As recommended by Anderson, the prices now will be based on an increase of $1.40 per hundredweight of hogs and $2.25 per hundredweight of beef cattle at Chicago.

This means that butcher shop prices of meat, when control is slapped back on September 9, will range above June 30 level prices by 2½ to 3 cents on pork and 5½ on beef cuts.

Price Rises Hit Toys

The wave of price rises meanwhile hit the kiddie-car set with OPA announcing a 4.8 per cent increase on toy trucks, planes, tricycles, wagons, scooters, and other children's wheel goods made of metal.

Galoshes, arctics and other rubber footwear were removed from price control entirely under terms of the new price control law which requires the lifting of ceilings whenever supply balances demand.

Sterling silver flatware was decontrolled also for another reason—it is "insignificant in the cost of living." Silver plated knives, forks and spoons, however, remain under ceilings.

"Somewhat higher prices" were authorized for dealers in soybeans and cottonseed meal and some other feeds which were ordered back under price control by recent decision of the Price Decontrol Board.

Processors of such feeds—which also include hominy, glutein and mill feeds, linseed meal and oatmeal by-products—will revert to their June 30 ceilings as of September 3, but the dealers are entitled to restore their March percentage of profit under the new OPA act.

Work Day and Night

Price experts of OPA have been working day and night to calculate the wide range of new livestock ceilings for each region and type of sale in line with Anderson's announcement on Wednesday of his price recommendations.

OPA had expected to announce the new ceilings Thursday night. They are effective tomorrow on livestock producers and slaughterers, September 5 on wholesalers, and September 9 on retailers. The time table of effective dates remains unchanged, but Anderson's action, following a long undercover tussle with OPA Administrator Paul Porter, necessitated delay in the announcement of the ceiling levels, OPA said.

Livestock and meat products were ordered back under price control by the decontrol board on August 20.

Porter promptly announced at that time he expected to roll ceilings back to the June 30 level or near it, and, working on that theory, went so far as to begin the printing of retail ceiling price lists for posting in the country's 800,000 butcher shops. Thrown into turmoil by Anderson's overriding decision, OPA now expects to issue the old price lists, together with a hastily printed correction sheet revising ceilings upward. There will not be time, OPA spokesmen say, to print complete new ceiling lists.

Public announcement of the new retail meat ceilings is not expected until next week.

OPA's next major headache job begins late today when the Agriculture Department announces the list of agricultural products which no longer are in short supply. Immediately upon announcement, such items will go off price control.

But OPA will have to make the decisions as to which of thousands of products and by-products fall in the decontrol classification and which must remain under ceilings.

Announcement of such action cannot be expected until Monday night, for pricing officials will be obliged to work throughout the Labor Day weekend in compiling the lists for industry and consumer guidance.

Yearlings Set New High

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP).—Steer yearlings climbed to a new all-time record price of $30.25 a hundred pounds today, topping the previous set last Saturday by a quarter.

Wilson & Co. paid the record price for a load of black Angus animals weighing an average of 1066 pounds.

Receipts were light and about 15 loads of strictly good or better quality steers and yearlings brought $21.50 to $30, consistent with the entire week's trade. Lower grades were about steady to 50 cents off.

Sheep and hogs likewise were in scant supply, and prices held steady with yesterday's close at $19 and $19.50, respectively.

per cent from the clearances of the previous year."

Clearance Record Cited

The department's records of clearances during the past year is "a pretty good answer to the frequently asked question: 'What are we doing to meet the city's crime wave'," Callahan said.

The report also revealed that most felonies were committed in Precincts No. 1 and 2 with 1551 and 1465, respectively. The Second Precinct cleared up 579 of the cases committed in its jurisdiction. The First Precinct solved 238 of its cases.

Traffic violations took a sharp increase over the previous year. Members of the Traffic Division, Callahan reported, made 44,723 arrests, impounded 1584 vehicles and reported 4749 in fiscal 1946.

In 1945 traffic officials made 32,842 arrests, impounded 948 vehicles and reported 3781 accidents. Eighty-one traffic deaths occurred this past year as compared to 84 traffic fatalities in fiscal 1945.

In addition to working toward a 2500-man police force, Callahan said his postwar goal includes: modernization or replacement of older station houses; a new station house in the Eleventh Precinct; a scientific crime laboratory; replacement of all obsolete equipment, standardization and simplification of records and intensive courses of instruction for members of the force.

"It is hoped that the next few years will find this department one of the best equipped and most efficiently run law enforcement agencies in the country," the police superintendent told the Commissioners.

"Now we have many worn out prewar cars, leaky harbor patrol boats and some pre-Civil War station houses," he declared.

AFL Proposes Look at Books To Speed Work

By the Associated Press

The American Federation of Labor offered yesterday to "speed production, avoid strikes and negotiate wage increases within price ceilings" but asked for an occasional, confidential look at employers' books.

This policy of cooperation can succeed, the AFL said, "only if employers are ready to meet us half way."

Its policy statement is set forth in its publication, "Labor's Monthly Survey," the Federation declared:

"We say to American employers: 'We have offered to cooperate with you as partners in improving production. Show us the facts so we can know the results of our efforts. Give us production records so we can watch the increase due to our daily work.

"Give us access to financial reports so we can see the income resulting from the joint production process. Share with us equitably as increasing income makes wage increases possible.'"

One big AFL union, John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, called yesterday in its journal for private operation of soft coal mines in preference to Government control. The Government took them under its wing last May in ending a 59-day strike.

Lewis has more negotiations with the operators coming up September 10.

A union demand for an inspection of company books created a Nation-wide uproar last winter when it became a major issue in the CIO-United Auto Workers strike against General Motors.

President Truman subsequently asked Congress for legislation which would have empowered Federal fact-finding boards to look into company books in trying to find formulas for settling major labor disputes. The measure, never enacted, also contemplates a 30-day ban on strikes while the boards were at work.

British Buy U. S. Planes For Competitive Service

London, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Ministry of Civil Aviation said tonight it had ordered six boeing stratocruisers from the United States as "an interim measure designed to maintain a fully competitive service on the New York route during the years 1948-50."

Plane's Pants Delay Mantz In Bendix Race

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (AP).—He lost 10 minutes at the start and had to pull a "movie stunt" to get on his way, but Paul Mantz buzzed across the finish line of the Bendix Trophy Race a mere 10 seconds behind his own estimate of how long it would take.

"My landing gear jammed and I couldn't get the wheels up when I took off," said the bronzed Burbank (Calif.) flier. "The pants that protect the wheels had caught and jammed against the lower side.

"I could see daylight through a small hole at my feet, and could tell what had happened. Five times I tried to get those wheels in, and was about to give up. They would have slowed me down so much I might as well have dropped out of the race.

"But I've been in this crazy movie stunt business long enough to figure there always was a way out," he grinned. "I took the ship up to 20,000 feet and did a tight loop. That shook the gear loose and I was able to get the wheels up."

Before the take-off Mantz had said in a half-serious, half-joking way that he ought to be able to get across the country to Cleveland in 4 hours and 42 minutes. It took him 10 seconds longer because of the landing gear, he said.

WEATHER

Midwest, the Weather Bureau explained, because of the absence of the usually prevailing eastward winds in western Canada early this week. Instead, the mass was pushed along by a southward wind.

In the East where reading were as low at 57 degrees at Baltimore, and Asheville, N. C., 34 in West Virginia and 30 at Bloomingdale and Schroon Lake in the Adirondacks, some weather bureaus warned of another dip as abrupt or more so for Friday night. Atlanta also expected cooler weather.

Paris Squabbles Spur Hemisphere Unity

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—The difficulties blocking the way towards an understanding among the big powers in Paris should move statesmen of the Americas to intensify their efforts toward greater inter-American unity and understanding, Foreign Minister Eduardo Rodriguez Larreta said today.

He said he expected the American foreign ministers to meet in Rio de Janeiro next November as tentatively scheduled, to conclude a permanent mutual assistance and inter-American security treaty, in place of the wartime emergency resolutions of the Chapultepec Act.

Greece Claims 21 Killed in New Red Raids

Athens, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Greek government declared today that 21 persons had been killed in new raids by Communist bands, and the commander of the Greek gendarmerie charged that "foreign officers" had participated in recent "guerrilla civil war" in Macedonia.

The two statements were issued as the government banned all political meetings prior to Sunday's plebiscite on the return of the Greek monarchy.

Colonel Tsatalos, gendarmerie chief, did not identify the "foreign officers," nor foreign insignia which he said was found on uniforms of some captured members of the bands responsible for the outbreaks. He added that the situation in Macedonia was now under control.

Place Responsibility

A ministry of public order bulletin said Communist bands also were responsible for the kidnaping of 32 persons in Macedonia, Thessaly, and the Peloponnesus.

(Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov charged at the Paris Peace Conference today that Greece was using a "reign of terrorism" to pave the way for the return from exile of King George II.)

Meanwhile, Buell Maben, chief of the UNRRA mission in Greece, declared 400 UNRRA trucks had been used to take persons to a royalist rally in Athens last night, and that he would protest to the Greek government against unauthorized use of the vehicles. He said he also would protest use of UNRRA trucks by the Greek military for transporting personnel.

Acting Premier Stylianos Gonatas disclosed the ban on political meetings, and announced that loudspeaker broadcasts of plebiscite returns would not be permitted.

Both Parties Lauded

He lauded both Leftists and Rightists for orderliness at mass meetings the past two days and the police for exemplary conduct.

"Now is the chance to express our free will," he added. "If this day (Sunday) passes without disorder and with calmness everyone will know it is a credit to Greece and it will raise the prestige of the nation before the world, whose eyes are centered on Greece."

The ministry of public order said that the worst violence occurred near Grevena in western Macedonia, where it declared 400 Leftists armed with machineguns and automatic rifles attacked a gendarmerie station. The Leftists killed one gendarme, and seized six others and 15 civilians after forcing surrender of the station, the ministry said. One Rightist and his son were killed in the same clash, the bulletin added.

Three gendarmes were killed and two wounded in an attack on a gendarmerie station near Tripolis by 100 Leftists, the bulletin reported.

British and American observers will tour the polling places. Russia rejected an invitation to send election observers. It had been announced that Americans would not act as observers because of lack of personnel, but later Ambassador Leland Morris said the United States Mission would remain and be supplemented by 25 officers from Germany and Italy.

Editor Acquitted

Sakis Botsis, editor of Acropolis, was acquitted today of libel charges brought by the Greek government after the Russian ambassador protested articles criticizing Stalin and the Soviet Union. Two editors of Ellikon Aima, publication of the Royalist Party, have been convicted and sentenced to seven months in jail.

$402,000 Netted By Liquor System; Records Broken

Realizing a net profit of $402,000 for the past fiscal year, the Montgomery County liquor dispensary system broke all previous records, Beryl R. English, secretary and treasurer of the County Liquor Control Board, said yesterday.

The profit is an increase of $40,000 over last year's net profit of $354,000. The figure represents profits for the three dispensaries, in Rockville, Bethesda and Silver Spring.

The board opened its fourth dispensary yesterday at 6110 MacArthur blvd., near the entrance of the Army Map Center, to serve the Glen Echo-Brookmont area. The new store is under the supervision of Earl Buscher of Four Corners, Md.

Earnings from all dispensaries will be transferred to the county treasurer's office for use in the general county budget.

Unit Named to Aid Fire Department

A fiscal committee to aid the Silver Spring (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department has been appointed by Dana B. Johannes, jr., president, it was announced yesterday.

The committee, headed by Howard Larcombe, will make recommendations for the department's annual budget and also advise the firemen on ways and means to raise funds.

Fred L. Lutes, president of the Suburban National Bank and a department member, has been named to serve in an advsory capacity to the committee. Committee members are Francis X. Belair, John Cole, George Moore, Loren Goodman, Randolph Kaufman, Edward White, William Jouvenal, Clay V. Davis, Leo Bender, Wade Barrett and James Widmayer.

USO Aide Transferred

Miss Louise Meroney, staff assistant at the Bethesda (Md.) USO clubhouse, has been transferred to the USO in Newport News, Va., effective September 9, it was announced yesterday. No appointment has been made as yet to fill Miss Meroney's place.

British Want U. S. Grants for Jews and Arabs

London, Aug. 30 (AP).—Britain will ask the United States to give economic help to both the Jews and Arabs in Palestine if the scheduled London conferences bring a settlement of the Holy Land issues, a highly placed British official said today.

But Britain, he added, no longer is relying upon any other form of U. S. participation in Palestine affairs.

A proposal that the United States grant 250 million dollars to the Arab community in Palestine for cultural and national development was contained in a report of the British-American committee of experts on Palestine. The British accepted this report in part, but President Truman declined to commit the United States to its recommendations.

Mr. Truman has, however, said the United States would pay the cost of transporting and settling 100,000 Jewish immigrants from Europe.

Bevin to Take Lead

The British official said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was aware that the Holy Land represented a source of danger to Anglo-American relations and for that as much as for any other reason, Bevin was going to take over active leadership of the British delegation to the London conferences, set to open September 9.

Just who would come to the meetings still was an open question, but British officials remained optimistic. The Arab Higher Executive in Palestine and the Jewish Agency still have not announced their decisions on the invitations.

Says Executive to Reject

Dr. Hussein Khalidi, secretary of the executive, declared last night that the executive would reject the invitation because Britain had declined to accept the Mufti of Jerusalem as a delegate. He said the executive would ask other Arab states not to attend.

But in Cairo, an Arab spokesman said the seven Arab states represented in the Arab League would send delegates even if the Arab executive in Palestine decided not to go. He said the Arab states would not listen to any request to turn down the invitation.

Arms Caches Found

Jerusalem, Aug. 30 (AP).—British troops discovered caches of large stores of ammunition and arms including Bren guns and machine-guns in two Jewish farming villages, Dorot and Ruhama, in southern Palestine, the military said tonight.

At Ruhama, arms were found in a concrete pit under the edge of the foundation of a new building. At Dorot, arms were stored in a hidden concrete chamber 8 feet in diameter and 12 feet deep, with the entrance beneath a henhouse.

Earlier a large quantity of military clothing and signaling and radio equipment were discovered.

A British military court here sentenced Jacob Menahem Alcalai, member of the underground Stern gang, to death for sabotaging Haifa railway shops last June.

The British navy's First DestroyerFlotailla arrived in Haifa to replace the Third Destroyer Flotilla.

Feed Supply For Livestock To Set Record

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that supplies of grains for livestock and poultry production in the season ahead are expected to be the most liberal in history.

Latest crop reports indicate, it said, that this year's production of corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums will be at the record level of 129 million tons. This is six million more than the previous record production in 1942 and 10 million more than last year.

The prospect helped influence Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to order an increase in ceilings on cattle and hogs. He said higher ceilings were necessary to provide feeders an incentive to convert the liberal feed supply into livestock.

Supplementing the favorable feed grain supply will be a large crop of hay and a record carryover of this roughage feed.

Likewise, supplies of byproduct feeds—such as oilseed meal and cake, sugar beet pulp, brewers' and distillers' dried grains—are expected to be larger than during the current feeding season, which ends September 30.

The biggest factor in the improved feed supply situation is a prospective record corn crop of more than 3,400,000,000 bushels.

2 Church Groups Meet in Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Delegates to the silver anniversary convention of the Luther League of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia, held at Roanoke College, have voted approval of a $1900 budget for the coming year and appointment of several important committees.

The committees include one to make a thorough study of the existing relationship program between the Luther League and the Lutheran Synod of Virginia, one to confer with synodical officials on appointment of a young peoples worker, a committee for reviison of the standard of excellence and one for the anniversary projector fund.

Brethren Also in Session

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Race relations, children's work, women's work, men's work, youth and church extension were among subjects being discussed in panels at the Southeastern Regional Conference of the Church of Brethren now in session.

A thousand delegates are in attendance.

LaGuardia Has Nothing to Say After Conference With Stalin

Moscow, Aug. 30 (AP).—F. H. LaGuardia, director of the expiring UNRRA, saw Prime Minister Stalin in the Kremlin last night and left Moscow today for Kiev in unaccustomed silence.

How long they talked or what they said was their secret. The New Yorker had no comment afterward. Nor would he say anything noteworthy of his 39-hour visit to the Russian capital.

He went to Spasso House and made a social call on Mrs. Walter Bedell Smith, wife of the United States Ambassador, excused himself and drove away.

Half an hour before midnight, the Moscow radio made known that Stalin had received LaGuardia. The UNRRA director slipped back to his hotel after midnight, arose for a 5 a. m. breakfast, motored to a suburban airport and took off for Kiev in a drizzling rain. His UNRRA party accompanied him.

Robert Jackson, assistant UNRRA director, went with LaGuardia to the Kremlin. Deputy Foreign Minister V. G. Dekanazov and N. E. Feonov, Russian UNRRA board member, also were present at the talk with Stalin.

During his Moscow stay, LaGuardia had lunch and a long talk with Foreign Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan; spoke lengthily with Moscow Mayor Georgi Popov, attended a Russian vaudeville show and held a news conference at Spasso House. Members of his entourage said the trip to the Soviet Union had been "highly enjoyable" but that there was one complanit: They didn't have time to eat after they kept all their engagements.

Virginia Bruce, Husband Part In Tears as He Goes to Camp

Hollywood, Aug. 30 (AP).—Virginia Bruce bid her "three day pass" husband Ali Ipar, a tearful farewell tonight as the firm star's Turkish mate complied with militar orders to cut short their honeymoon.

The statusque film queen clung to Ipar as he hurriedly packed his clothes, telephoned for train or plane reservations to Fort Lewis, Wash., and muttered:

"This shouldn't happen to a Turk."

Technically AWOL, Ipar stoutly maintained his three passes for three days each are in order and signed and he can't understand the fuss made by the Army over them.

Ipar's orders to return immediately to Fort Lewis climaxed a series of misadventures which started last Monday when military police hauled him off to the guardhouse. After five hours as a prisoner, Ipar was released with the Army's admission "it was all a mistake."

The Turkish movie writer, drafted eight weeks ago, then went ahead and married his movie queen Tuesday night in a brief ceremony at the home of friends.

Miss Bruce and Ipar were quietly honeymooning at her Pacific Palisades home for the past two days when suddenly, last night, Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall ordered him to return for an investigation of how he came to have three passes.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY—

on August 31, 1945—the President of the United States sent a letter to British Prime Minister Attlee requesting that 100,000 homeless European Jews be admitted into Palestine.

"The main solution appears to lie in the quick evacuation of as many as possible of the non-repatriable Jews, who wish it, to Palestine. If it is to be effective, such action should not be long delayed," the President said.

"No other single matter is so important for those who have known the horrors of concentration camps for over a decade as is the future of immigration possibilities into Palestine," President Truman declared.

A Year Later—The 100,000 miserable Jewish refugees are still languishing in the detention camps of Europe.

✓ The doors of Palestine—the internationally-guaranteed Jewish homeland—are all but sealed to the remnants of European Jewry.

✓ British ships, guns and troops blockade Palestine's coast and borders to intercept and bar from Palestine those Jews who have survived the Nazi holocaust.

✓ Helpless Jewish men, women and children—the remnants of Buchenwald, Dachau and Auschwitz, fleeing from the nightmare of 6,000,000 Jews who met horrible death—are driven aboard British transports by tear gas and fire hoses, and deported to new prison pens on the Island of Cyprus.

✓ Leaders of the Jewish Agency for Palestine are arrested like common criminals and kept behind barbed wire.

✓ The elementary civil rights of the Jewish citizens of Tel-Aviv, Jerusalem and other towns of Palestine are trampled upon by British troops who invade peaceful Jewish homes and communities, and—in acts unprecedented in civilized, democratic countries—place whole cities under arrest.

✓ Mass death sentences are imposed by military courts on Jews who resist Britain's illegal rule.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was elected on a platform which declared: "We favor the opening of Palestine to unrestricted Jewish immigration and colonization and such a policy as to result in the establishment there of a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth."

The Congress of the United States overwhelmingly approved the same objective in December 1945, when it passed a resolution declaring "that the interest shown by the President in the solution of this problem is hereby commended and that the United States shall use its good offices with the mandatory power to the end that Palestine shall be opened for free entry of Jews into that country to the maximum of its agricultural and economic potentialities, and that there shall be full opportunity for colonization and development, so that they may freely proceed with the upbuilding of Palestine as the Jewish national home and, in association with all elements of the population, establish Palestine as a democratic commonwealth in which all men, regardless of race or creed, shall have equal rights."

What have President Truman, his Administration and the State Department done to press home the commitment of the Democratic Party and the expressed will of the American people?

Busybody

The indefatigably curious counsel of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Mr. Ernie Adamson, is now in Oak Ridge, Tenn., investigating reported efforts to unionize the workers in the atomic bomb plant there. "We want to know," he is quoted as declaring in his bland, inquisitorial way, "if the AFL intends to spend one million dollars at the atomic plants, what they are going to spend it for. I'd like to know how they can spend that much money legitimately." This is, of course, a natural curiosity and one that may be shared, if there is any substance to the million dollar rumor, by the CIO, the workers at Oak Ridge, a host of newspaper reporters and, indeed, almost anyone of a normally inquiring turn of mind.

What we want to know even more, however, is what special license Mr. Adamson has to seek satisfaction for his curiosity on this interesting point. It can scarcely be that he is making his inquiries as an official of Un-American Activities Committee. For the AFL, whatever its shortcomings, is impeccably American; and its right to organize workers into unions for collective bargaining purposes is established by specific act of Congress, as well as by the whole pattern of American political life and the constitutional guarantee of free association. It must be, then, that Mr. Adamson is inquiring entirely on his own, as he has done occasionally in the past, and that his status in Oak Ridge is merely that of private busybody.

Let In The Light

Moscow is sponsoring so many irritating if not hostile moves these days that there is a tendency to be suspicious of everything that one of her representatives suggests. For that reason it was scarcely to be supposed that Andrei Gromyko's request that the Security Council gather information on troops occupying countries that are not on the list of former enemies would be welcomed. Yet we think the Security Council should have this information. Indeed, the Russian request might well be made the starting point for a general round-up of data concerning all troops operating outside of their national boundaries.

Undoubtedly this Russian move was aimed chiefly at British troops in Greece. Yesterday it was followed up by a charge from Foreign Commissar Molotov in Paris that Great Britain and the United States are interfering in the Greek election to be held on Sunday. This is all a part of Russia's campaign to discredit the Western democracies in the Mediterranean area and the Near East and to make more secure its own hold upon the Balkans. But when the Soviet Union proposes to use fact-finding and publicity as a weapon in its campaign, the opportunity to turn that move to the advantage of international relations in general is too good to be lost.

We do not see that there is any reason for concealment of the data the Russians seek. The Security Council is charged with the awful task of preserving world peace and of ironing out differences that otherwise might lead to collisions. Surely it ought to know how many troops the United States has in China and Iceland, and how many the British have in Greece, Trans-Jordan, Iraq and other countries. Likewise it should know how many troops the Russians have in such non-enemy countries as Poland and Austria. The Russians must be ready to give that information or they would not have raised the issue. The argument is just as strong, of course, for the submission of information as to air and naval bases that may have been established in any of these countries. The Security Council can scarcely be expected to discharge its obligations without a knowledge of these factors.

We think the Council might well ask also for information as to troops that are occupying territory of former enemies. Does not each country owe to world opinion an accounting for its stewardship in the defeated nations? Suspicions that are now multiplying in frightful proportions feed upon secrecy, the broadcasting of wild rumors and spying of the type that Russians agents have confessed perpetrating in the American occupation zone of Germany. The situation of the world seems to us to cry out for full disclosure of information concerning troops outside their own country and even concerning the intentions of the occupying powers. Let the United States give a full account of its operations and strength in Japan in return for a full account of what the Russians are doing in the Balkans. In our opinion the Russian quest for information is not one to be spurned but to be welcomed and expanded.

Tense Yugoslav Border

From Trieste

Tito's apology for the deaths of American airmen has done nothing to abate the tension on the Morgan Line dividing Venezia Giulia into temporary Yugoslav and Anglo-American zones. Yugoslavia seems determined in one way or another to gain possession of this undefined territory. Seven military divisions are massed back of Tito's line, but the outposts which are actually guarding it belong to his own political units, which appears to be supplying the troublemakers. There has been no sanguinary brush since the July 12 collision with a patrol of our own 88th Division. But incidents in the Anglo-American zone are common—demonstrations, the throwing of bombs and grenades into private houses and meeting places, and shoot-and-run ambushes. In addition there are frequent raids and abductions so that the situation in the territory makes one think of the Scottish border in the fifteenth century.

How the incidents are instigated can only be surmised. Undoubtedly there is underground control from the Yugoslav side focused on Ljubljana. This accounts for the magic way that the Slovenes in the surrounding villages of the Julian Alps without warning pour into Gorizia and Trieste for protest meetings. Perhaps more direct leadership is supplied from the local Communists, who are in league with the Yugoslavs across the Morgan Line and who provide the inciting pro-Tito signs with which the countryside is plastered. Incidentally Kardelj's picture and name have been appearing of late alongside Tito's.

In respect of the Communists, the situation is peculiar since they are independent of affiliation with the party organization in Italy. An understanding is in effect whereby the Italian Communists, who are probably torn between their creed and their nationality, are keeping hands off while the so-called Julian Communists, Italian and Slovene, are monopolizing the pro-Tito agitation within the Anglo-American zone. The Julian Communists are by far the dominating political element in Venezia Giulia.

What is most significant of Tito's expansionist plans is that he has kept both a shadow Tito government and a shadow Tito city council in being in Trieste. The city council office fronts the headquarters of the Julian Communist Party. These are the outward manifestations within the zone of Tito's aspirations. It is also understood here that Tito has revamped the territorial divisions of Yugoslavia into seven provinces of which one is Trieste. Whether this is the case or not, there is no gainsaying Tito's intimidation of the local population. The result is that the Italian element is cowed while the Allied control is kept so constantly on the alert that the zonal line looks more like a front than a cooperative arrangement between allies. It is a trying situation for the Americans and the British to handle but our observation of the 60-mile American sector leads us to the conclusion that the 88th Division which is manned nowadays by teen-agers is magnificently equal to the job.

In all these circumstances the Paris peacemakers are grasping a nettle in trying to rearrange the future of Trieste and its hinterland of Venezia Giulia. In itself internationalization of Trieste and its environs is a reasonable, even an inevitable, solution. But such a solution can be effective only after certain conditions have been met. One is that the area blueprinted in the foreign ministers' agreement (which, incidentally, should be modified somewhat) should have a government headed by a strong and neutral governor. But the overshadowing requirement is that whatever agreement is made calls for on-the-spot guarantees supported by the Western allies. Without such guarantees, including unrestricted access for the trade of the port, Trieste would either fall victim to a Tito coup or be strangled to death by the squeeze that Yugoslavia would be able to exercise on Trieste's land communications.

U. N. Blackball

After the near-wholesale blackballing of applicants at the Security Council meeting in New York Thursday, the name given the international organization seems to be a little misplaced. A more accurate title would be "United Nations (except those Russia does not approve)." For there is nothing else to conclude from Thursday's session than that the principle of universality of membership has gone by the boards. The test for admission now is not whether a nation is sovereign or peace-loving in its own right, but whether it has had the foresight to establish diplomatic relations with the Kremlin.

Responsibility for the queer interpretation of the U. N. Charter to exclude countries which obviously are qualified rests squarely with Moscow. The United States evidenced its desire to forgo its reservations in the interest of obtaining admission of nations which merited it. Although the United States had serious doubts as to the independence of Outer Mongolia and the character of the Albanian government, Delegate Herschel Johnson moved that the entire slate of applicants be accepted. But Mr. Gromyko insisted on applying the peculiar yardstick that three of the applicants did not have diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union. He thus vetoed the entry of Eire, Portugal and Trans-Jordan. With the hope of broad acceptance thus scuttled, the United States, Great Britain and the Netherlands had no course but to reject the obvious attempt of Russia to add Albania and Outer Mongolia to her voting bloc at the expense of the others. Hence the only three nations to be recommended for membership were Afghanistan, Iceland and Sweden.

Russia may have had legitimate reason for questioning the independence of Trans-Jordan, just as we were suspicious of Outer Mongolia and Albania. But this certainly did not enter into the applications of Eire and Portugal. They are long-established nations with long-established governments. Their exclusion from the international organization clearly thwarts principles of the U. N. Charter and is a loss to the community of nations.

It is scant consolation that our skirts are clean and that the stigma for injudicious and excessive use of the veto belongs to Russia. The impasse that has resulted has been an injury to the prestige of the international organization as a whole. It is a situation which should not be allowed to continue. Either the term "United Nations" means what it says in membership as well as in spirit, or the U. N. will degenerate into a mere debating association of big powers and satellites.

Pat On The Wrist

It takes a strong stomach to swallow the kind of "punishment" bestowed on Col. James A. Kilian Thursday for his part in the Lichfield brutality cases. The $500 fine and reprimand which an Army court-martial decided on for Kilian looks more like a reward than a just penalty for bossing a torture camp. By ugly coincidence, on the same day that this flea bite was administered to Colonel Kilian, a Negro private who had been a prosecution witness at the Lichfield trials was sentenced to six months in jail and a fine of $180 for attacking a German youth with his fists.

Mr. Herbert Block's admirable cartoon elsewhere on this page will express exactly, we think, the sentiments of most former GIs. They will see in this farcical performance a perfect example of the Army caste system in operation. They will detect the none-too-subtle gloved hand of the unofficial but widely known Regular Army Protective Association at work. They will remember that two Lichfield enlisted men already tried received stiff prison sentences (since suspended by the War Department), although these two testified that their orders came from above. Former GIs will laugh wryly at how the recommendations of the Doolittle board on tougher penalties for higher rank have been carried out.

To be sure, the events at Lichfield occurred during the heat and pressure of combat. Colonel Kilian was acquitted of the charge that he authorized cruelty, and the word "knowingly" was striken from the specification on which he was finally convicted. It is possible that the prosecution botched the job, or that there were mitigating factors that have not been made public. Nevertheless, it is impossible to justify the discrepancy between the grudging censure given Kilian for acts of men under his command, which he claimed to know nothing about, and the supreme penalty exacted from Japanese Generals Homma and Yamashita for the brutal conduct of troops under their command. Coupled with the obvious past reluctance of high brass in the European theater to air responsibility for the Lichfield sordidness all the way to the top, the entire affair has become a disgraceful travesty.

There will be a tendency on the part of many persons to forget instances in which military justice has operated efficiently and to allow the Lichfield burlesque to undermine their faith in military justice in general. Army regulations prevent the increasing of a penalty once it has been decided. But higher Army authorities, if they wish to combat the stench which the Kilian case has raised, can express their vigorous disapproval and make it clear that they do not condone such coddling. As it is, about the only thing lacking in the court's generosity was a recommendation that Kilian be promoted.

Career Man

The Chief Coordinator of the Treasury Department's law enforcement agencies, Elmer L. Irey, goes into retirement today. He has been enforcing the laws of the United States ever since he went to work in 1907 as a clerk under the chief inspector of the Postoffice Department. Daniel Roper took him into the Bureau of Internal Revenue in 1919 to put a stop to income tax evasion. He set up the Treasury's Intelligence Unit and made it the scourge of tax dodgers without any respect whatever for their wealth, political influence or social position. Al Capone and Moe Annenberg and the heirs of Huey Long's Louisiana satrapy were among the victims of this highly scientific cop's patient research.

But such sensational cases were the exception rather than the rule in Elmer Irey's career. He worked for the most part without benefit of publicity, avoiding the limelight as a deterrent to his effectiveness. He made quiet, patient policing the watchword of all Treasury agencies under his jurisdiction when Secretary Morgenthau named him coordinator of all enforcement activities in 1937—the Secret Service, the Alcohol Tax Unit, the Narcotics Bureau, the Coast Guard, Customs and Foreign Funds Control, as well as the Intelligence Unit he himself had established. Elmer Irey compelled a respect for the laws of the United States even in that unhappy prohibition period when lawlessness was most in vogue. He has earned the warm gratitude of all who share in that respect. In the last analysis, it is upon men of such devotion that the prestige and integrity of the Government must rest.

HOLD IT NOT TIGHTLY

Lift it carefully,
it is fragile as a butterfly's wing;
touch it gently,
as frail petal of orchid that wilts against the hand;
handle it lightly,
as the child nurses the wounded,
wing-shattered bird;
hold it not tightly
lest it fade beneath a touch, bruised by the hand that loved it overmuch.

"Justice McReynolds"

I read with interest your editorial of August 27 on the subject of Justice McReynolds. I have known this gentleman for a long time. In social gatherings he could be as amiable and pleasant as any one else, but in public life he was regarded as entirely different; and, as you suggest, it was unfortunate if he did not maintain amiable personal relations with some other members of the Supreme Court.

Justice McReynolds was a man of strong convictions and, perhaps, of strong prejudices, but I cannot agree with your suggestion or intimation that by "fresh judicial thinking" he should have sacrificed his firm convictions regarding constitutional violations. The Constitution specifically provides methods for its amendment, and it is a violation of the law and the Constitution, as well as a violation of his oath of office, for any judge, high or low, to engage in judicial legislation in order to circumvent the Constitution or the law for the purpose of pleasing a majority or a minority or for any other purpose.

The Constitution was made for the protection of all our people, especially minorities, and if one article or one section can be "whittled" away by our Supreme Court, eventually the entire Constitution may be "whittled" away.

On this subject Chief Justice Marshall, in the old case of Cohen vs. Virginia, said: "We have no more right to decline the exercise of jurisdiction which is given, than to usurp that which is not given. The one or the other would be treason to the Constitution." This pronouncement was reaffirmed by Chief Justice Cranch in the old case of the United States vs. Amos Kendall, Postmaster General.

Our Supreme Court has the lawful right to construe, but not to nulify or amend the Constitution.

Bertrand Russell's Views

In connection with my wedding, I have twice recently been incompletely quoted in the press as saying certain things in regard to my father-in-law's views on marriage. As they stand, these remarks give an extremely misleading impression, and there are one or two points in regard to them that I wish to clarify.

In 1940, as is generally known, my father, Bertrand Russell, was appointed to teach logic and highly abstract philosophy at the College of the City of New York, but certain reactionary and repressive political interests in New York were afraid that if he taught these subjects to boys the morals of the girls in the neighborhood would be corrupted. They therefore generated widespread hysteria, they distorted his views, and they succeeded in having his appointment rescinded without even allowing him to appear in his own defense. This occurred in spite of an outcry from many of the best people in the United States, and in violation of the right of mature students to hear all views from their teachers.

The result is that his opinions, and what he is commonly thought to believe, are two different things. It is easy to distort a man's views by quoting only a part of what he says. If you quoted to a person ignorant of the Bible only the text: "A bishop should be the husband of one wife," he would naturally infer from the word "should" that normally bishops practiced polygamy. Among a nation of people ignorant of the Bible, the anti-Biblical interests, on the strength of this, would come out with the headline: "Bible advocates polygamy for bishops."

Much the same kind of distortion occurred in my father's case; indeed, his more extreme attackers seem to have pictured him as a kind of male version of Sally Rand. Anyone who desires to know the truth in regard to him has only to read the book on "The Bertrand Russell Case," by John Dewey and H. Kallen, or Marriage and Morals in its entirety, or in particular, the chapter on Nietsche in Dewey's History of Western Philosophy, a chapter which is one of the finest confessions of faith I have ever read.

In any case, I feel that his opinions are irrelevant to my marriage. Even if they are regarded as relevant, he nowhere states that a happy marriage is a bad thing, so no issue arises. But I wish to make it abundantly clear that, although there may be one or two small points on which I do not completely agree with everything that he has said, I shall always wholeheartedly agree with the spirit of inquiry and of humanity in which he has said it, and with the effort to help people to grope their way to happiness, which has inspired him in all his labors and in all his books.

District Revenue Stories

The Post has rendered a distinct community service by publishing the articles by Edward Ryan dealing with the District's new revenue program. Citizens are always greatly concerned over the use of public funds, but it takes more prodding to develop equal concern over the source of funds.

These articles furnish a fine background for study of the most equitable and productive sources of revenue. The League of Women Voters is engaged in such a study and feels that Mr. Ryan's work has helped materially by setting forth the many issues involved.

Pauley On Reparations

In the article by Edwin Pauley in The Post of August 25 there is none of the factual basis which it should have had, but there are all the propagandistic expressions typical of the Rex Stout-Henry Morgenthau school of thought. The term "reparations" continues to be applied to a program entailing large-scale industrial destruction which does good to no one, and to which few have objected as vigorously as our Dutch and Belgian allies.

Besides, Mr. Pauley's mind must be out of date, because he still speaks of Germany at a time when what remains of that country is little more than pieces, the largest of which is administered by Russia as if it were to become an integral part of the Soviet realm.

Mr. Pauley is worried about our Allies not liking his policies and being in no hurry to carry them out. Why the astonishment? The British are disinclined to carry on their books a "subsidized economic slum," which Mr. Pauley, as a successful businessman, should understand. The Russians are thinking of reparations out of current German production which, within certain limits, would have been quite possible had not the Morgenthau-Pauley variety of machine-smashing been instituted to destroy the tools with which such work could have been done.

The way Mr. Pauley discusses security makes it plain that all he and his friends are concerned about is the solution of the problems of yesterday. Let him ask any competent military observer whether the threat of World War III comes from what remains of Germany, or whether there is not a greater danger that the victors of this recent war may find themselves at loggerheads, their conflicts greatly aggravated by a policy toward Germany which satisfies no one and abounds with the elements of disunity and conflict.

Parking Problem Solutions

Owing to the lack of parking problem discussion lately, I hasten to add my bit lest this nemesis slip into the channel of complaint, strong promises, and oblivion as per custom. A few suggestions could alleviate the condition to some extent.

For one, let us establish a few common-sense rulings to guide our taxi drivers. An important one would prohibit drivers pulling in to the curb to pick up a passenger at an intersection and placing the cab at a 45-degree angle to the curb. This custom, plus that of pulling across an intersection after waiting for a red light to change and then immediately halting at the other side for a pick-up, invariably jams up the following traffic, causes many emergency stops on the part of following vehicles, and generally frays the nerves of all drivers.

Also, the virtual nonexistence of arm signals on the part of cab drivers is a menace. Pedestrians, too, could assist in this matter by not attempting to procure cabs at intersections. Or couldn't taxi waiting platforms be established similar to streetcar waiting platforms?

Let us go to law enforcement. It is difficult to determine whether general enforcement laxness on parking rules enforcement is to lull the public into violations, or is due to lack of adequate personnel and hence their inconsistency in enforcing traffic parking notices. Further, the complete lack of coherency in parking signs complicates more than explains the rules.

Should or could there not be fewer spaces allocated to shipping entrances and greater use made of alleyways? Should congressional tags entitle the owners to privileges of priority in a common possession that are not even enjoyed in so democratic an institution as the barber shop?

Nothing so hurts the parking space seeker as incoherence, inconsistency, and injustice in our parking limitations and allocation of space to individuals. Let us overhaul our parking signs, and this time make them legible and uncomplicated. Let us enforce them consistently.

Parking problems could be further diminished by all of us taking no more and no less than the lawful 3 feet of space between bumpers of cars when parking parallel to the curb. This would be particularly helpful in semi-residential business districts where meters are not in use.

If additional parking space is required, why not emulate the underground parking lots so usefully employed in San Francisco? We have ample park areas, which would not be destroyed in beauty if identical care were taken as was in San Francisco. Perhaps, in the event of world catastrophe, these likewise would be useful as shelters we would then need.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Uneasy Holiday

CATAUMET, MASS.—In spite of the latest crisis, blazoned in black headlines in the newspapers and proclaimed on the radio regularly on the half hour, America is relaxing in this first summer of the peace. Relaxing, you might say, with a vengeance.

There is a kind of urgency about it. If this is to be only a brief interlude of peace—and that gloomy foreboding sometimes bears down heavily—then we are determined to squeeze the last drop of goodness from it.

The winding roads, here on Cape Cod, are lined with cars. The public beaches are crowded. The "No Vacancies" sign hangs out, as in every other resort area throughout the country. To care for those who were disappointed during the summer, many hotels will remain open through September and October.

But for those who seek it, there is peace and quiet. We look out through the pines to the stretch of sand and the blue water of our small arm of the bay. Our sailboat heads out toward the channel, moving stiffly in the swift breeze. This peace may be deceptive, but if it is, we cannot help for a time welcoming the deception.

"EARTH COULD be fair." That is the phrase which recurs again and again. Sitting on the shore of this playground that projects out into the Atlantic, you think of the long sweep of the American earth. The fir-bordered lakes of Wisconsin and Minnesota. The Rockies and the great parks where thousands upon thousands of tourists get at least a glimpse of splendor. Then across the Divide to the Pacific Slope and all its wonders. Here are Americans by the million, playing, relaxing.

It seems so far from the cauldrons of Europe, where hate and jealousy bubble more fiercely than ever. Although we've learned painfully that it is just next door, Trieste seems a million miles from Cape Cod. What is it that has made the difference? Is it our space and our natural wealth? Is it the fact that we could make more or less a clean start, breaking with the old nationalist rivalries? Is it, as our isolationists like to tell us, merely the fact of our physical isolation?

"Earth could be fair." I think back to a few days spent last year in Yugoslavia. Again and again, people came up to me on the street and in restaurants, looking around cautiously first, then speaking in an undertone to ask if there wasn't some way they could come to America. For the old, it was a last desperate prayer. For the young, it was a distant gleam of hope; they wanted to know if they couldn't join our Army and thereby qualify themselves for citizenship.

This was in the Yugoslavia of swaggering Marshal Tito. It was in the Yugoslavia where even then a Pan-Slavic imperialism was being fanned by an unceasing propaganda bellows. But if you tried to write about Pan-Slavism, the censor blue-pencilled it. Tito was not yet ready to show his hand.

I don't think most of the unhappy people in Yugoslavia were in the least interested in Pan-Slavism. They wanted peace and a little more to eat. They wanted to be free of fear for a time. But it is wonderful what the propaganda fellows can do with a people who are hungry, confused, frustrated.

An incident out of that brief visit comes back. One of Tito's young hotheads, a wife of a cabinet minister, suddenly turned to me and said: "Don't you love your country?" To an American that seemed a foolish question. Of course we love our country, I told her. "Why don't you talk about it, then?" she demanded.

ACROSS THE bay here, on the reefs that are out of water at low tide, people are clamming. The notices posted along the shore say that clamming is allowed on this one day only. It is signed by the selectmen of Barnstable.

Well, perhaps we do take our country too much for granted. It has always been here, rich and proud and beautiful—if at times a little foolish and confused. Nevertheless, that seems infinitely preferable to the disease of nationalism; the terrible pathology of hate that is once again being fanned into flame.

If you look up quickly, you can see those flames—there, just across the line of the dunes. They intrude on the peaceful landscape even in this summer when America would like to look the other way.

Handicapped Problem

I agree with C. T.'s suggestion published in The Post August 24, that Congress should pass legislation for handicapped persons, especially those who cannot use public transportation facilities. Usually, these persons have a larger doctor bill at the end of the year than the average person. I am not handicapped; however, I have a coworker who is. She has to spend $1 a day in cab fare to and from work; some days she is as late as 8 o'clock getting home. She gets off at 5:30, but cab drivers do not want to be "bothered" with her; they know she cannot afford a tip. She has to eat cold lunches every day because she cannot make it over to the cafeteria and back during lunch time.

Congress should pass legislation allowing handicapped persons an additional income tax deduction, depending on the handicap, of course.

Big Four Differences

By Barnet Nover

Hope In Foreign Minister Council

PARIS—In the first meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers since that body adjourned last July after setting the stage for the present Peace Conference dealt only with relatively minor matters. On the basis of what happened at the Quai D'Orsay meeting of August 29, it would be rash to conclude that a new and more hopeful stage in Big Four relations has been reached. However, participants have described this latest meeting of Messrs. Molotov, Byrnes, Bevin and Bidault as one held in an atmosphere of calm and amity. That in itself is good news.

NOVER

The fact is that during these weeks since the Foreign Ministers of Russia, the United States, Great Britain and France agreed to the draft settlements with five former enemy nations and set the stage for the present Peace Conference, relations among the Big Four have steadily deteriorated. If this dangerous trend has now been halted and perhaps reversed, the Peace Conference may finally begin to make real headway.

CERTAINLY THERE can be little doubt that one of the major reasons why that conference has been bogged down and why its sessions have repeatedly revealed a mood of conflict and tension has been the growing cleavage between Russia and the Western powers. This cleavage is, of course, no recent development. However, it did not prevent the powers from agreeing, though not without prolonged and painful effort, to the principal terms of peace with Italy, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland. That in itself was no small accomplishment. But the fact that the Big Four did succeed in overcoming obstacles which at London last September and in Paris last spring did seem insuperable was apparently not enough in itself to restore harmony among them.

Here at the Peace Conference Russia has manifested an unending suspicion regarding the good faith of the English-speaking powers in accepting arrangements regarding Italy and the other former satellites of the Reich which are clearly favorable to the Soviet Union. The Russians have more and more tended to regard the Peace Conference as a device by which the United States and Great Britain hoped to negate agreements accepted by the Council of Foreign Ministers. The repeated statements of Messrs. Byrnes and Bevin that they had no such intention have not apparently been enough to assure the Russians, particularly when they saw other English-speaking nations such as Australia proposing amendments to the draft treaties which went directly counter to the decisions of the Big Four.

The conference has now lasted long enough and the votes of the English-speaking powers have been registered on enough matters to prove that this Russian fear was ill-founded. For instance, on the Australian proposal to revise the reparations system embodied in the draft settlements with Romania, the United States, Great Britain and France voted solidly with Russia and against Australia. The same solid lineup of the Big Four has occurred on all other matters involving decisions of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

AT THE August 29 meeting of the Council renewed assurances were given to Russia on this matter and plans were made to work out a system to prevent misunderstandings regarding changes in the draft settlements which the Big Four may individually regard as desirable but which, not knowing the views of the others, they might be fearful of supporting. The deputies of the Foreign Ministers have been intrusted with the task of going through the 205 amendments and changes that have been submitted to the conference with a view to discovering to which of those 205 neither Russia nor the United States nor Great Britain nor France has any objections.

It must be remembered, however, that this agreement to support the agreements reached by the Council of Foreign Ministers at its July session applies only to votes in the Peace Conference. Mr. Byrnes has made it clear, for instance, that he will be strongly moved to support any recommendations approved by two thirds of the conference and will also give serious consideration to recommendations approved by a simple majority.

Furthermore, and this is even more important, there are many important questions involving the peace settlements upon which no agreement was reached by the Big Four. Among these are the future regulation of traffic on the Danube, the economic relationship between the former enemy states in the Balkans and the Allies, and the system of government that is to be set up in the international territory of Trieste. On these questions each of the Big Four retains freedom of action.

THIS POINT, too, was reemphasized at the August 29 meeting of the Council, which means that the decision of the conference as a whole may be determinative. Yet it is doubtful whether, no matter how big the majority, Russia will willingly bow to any recommendation that she considers harmful to her political or economic interests.

The answer to the question whether a new and hopeful state in Big Four relations at the Peace Conference has been ushered in by the latest meeting of the Council thus depends on whether, within the conference or outside, the Big Four can finally adjust differences on the unsettled problems of the peace, differences which have so far proved impossible of adjustment. We can only wait and see. The flareup over Greece at the conference the day after the Big Four met is not a hopeful sign.

The Gallup Poll

One-Third of Wives Handle Family Finances, Poll Finds

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 30.—In about a third of the families throughout the country women handle the great part of the family funds today.

In about one household in three the husband still clings to his ancient prerogative of controlling the family finances. In about 4 households in 10 the job of paying the bills and doling out the money for supplies and services is shared by the husband and wife.

This is all a far cry from the days before women's suffrage, before women took their place at the side of men in business, industry and the professions. In those days, it is probably safe to assume, the great majority of husbands held firm control of the family purse strings.

Information on which member of families most of the family finances was gathered throughout the Nation by field reporters for the Institute, who asked this question:

"In some families the wife manages most of the money, while in others the husband does. Who manages most of the money in your household?

The replies:

Husband manages money	29%
Wife manages money	32
Both handle money	39

There is this much to be said for arrangements as they are now found to be: virtually everyone in the poll reported satisfaction with the way things work in their households at the present time.

A total of 93 per cent reported themselves satisfied with the way finances are handled at the present time. Four per cent said they are dissatisfied, while 3 per cent were undecided.

Husbands in the manual occupations, skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers—are more inclined than members of other occupational groups to have their wives handle most of the money. Among professional and business people and among farmers, the tendency is to share the responsibility of handling the money.

	Husband Manages	Wife Manages	Both
Prof. and bus.	30%	26%	44%
White collar	29	32	39
Farmers	37	16	47

Bikini Damage Less Than Expected

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 30.—While it is safe to say that the public did not view the mighty Bikini tests as a fizzle, polls in the United States and France find that majorities thought the atom explosions were going to do more damage than they actually did.

Both here and in France, field reporters asked a representative sample of the voting population:

Did the atom bomb in the recent tests do more damage or less than you thought they would?

	U. S.	France
Did less damage than expected	53%	58%
Did more damage than expected	18	3
Did damage about as expected	11	11
No opinion	18	28

Over-Counter Trading In Kresge to Resume

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission today announced it will lift September 1 a suspension order against trading in the $1 par value common stock of Kresge Department Stores, Inc., Newark, N. J.

At the same time the commission disclosed the New York Stock Exchange plans to file an application to delist the stock.

Trading in Kresge common has been suspended on the New York exchange and over the counter since August 2 as a result of a combined action of the exchange and SEC.

The Exchange announced it will continue the suspension of Kresge stock under its own rules pending the SEC's action on the delisting application. Only effect of the SEC termination, therefore, will be to permit the resumption of trading over the counter, the commission said.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column will be written by several distinguished guest columnists—today's by Commodore John D. Small, Administrator, Civilian Production Administration.)

By John D. Small

ONE of the most unexpected things that has ever happened to me has been to be invited to write a column for Drew (obfuscation spelled sideways) Pearson. There is no point in my trying to compete with the crack-making expert so I will write about my own field—production—and try to give you a clear picture of the progress industrial America is making back to free enterprise.

Our country's industrial production recovered sharply in June to a new postwar peak and in July production climbed still further to a point higher than our best prewar year. In August production has steadily increased. The outlook is heartening if nothing occurs to rock the boat, and if production is allowed to continue without interruption for at least the next five or six months.

In the case of many products we are now producing far more than prewar, and in the case of others we are producing less. Products being produced at high speed are those which do not require the use of scarce materials. Industry is still plagued with shortages created, or intensified, during the widespread labor-management disputes throughout the first half of this year, and these shortages are slowing down production of many things we need the most.

For example, there simply isn't enough sheet steel to go around in spite of the fact that steel is now being produced at a very high rate. As a result, considerably fewer automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and many other consumer items are being produced. Similar shortages of copper and lumber are also slowing up production.

Rumors crop up every week or so that goods are being withheld from the market, that speculative hoarding on a wide scale is going on. It simply is not true. On the whole, over-all inventories at every level—manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer—are lower today per dollar sale than they were prewar.

Every now and then someone starts a rumor that enormous quantities of scarce goods are being exported. Again—it simply is not true. All the agencies of Government that are concerned are watching exports of scarce materials very carefully, and are alert to stop any undue drain that might be harmful to our economy.

Retail sales are continuing at record-breaking high levels. The public is ravenous for the goods it was unable to obtain during the war years. In consequence, retail stores are drained of scarce items as rapidly as they are put on sale.

Take men's suits, for example. The demand is terrific, yet the facts are that in the first six months of 1946 there were produced about 11,500,000 men's suits, plus 3,500,000 separate coats and 11 million separate pants (a total well above prewar peak production). The situation would be greatly eased if every man who does not absolutely have to have a new suit would refrain from buying for the next two or three months, and give the veteran a chance to get outfitted for college or a job.

Housing Crisis

THE DESPERATE need for housing is too well known to need repetition. Many factors are retarding home building. For instance, restrictive codes and ordinances; shortages of skilled labor; lack of a sufficient number of apprentices; rising costs of home building, including both materials and labor, and last, but not least, shortages of materials. CPA has jurisdiction over only the last of these factors.

Ever since VE-Day, CPA has been using its powers to increase the supply of building materials. The results are clear. Ever since midsummer of 1945 the production of building material has been increasing steadily and substantially. If all goes well and building material production continues to increase steadily, shortages of building materials will become less and less a retarding factor in home building and other factors will assume increasing importance.

At present and for some time ahead material shortages will plague us. For this reason the CPA must still continue to hold down non-housing construction. Only those projects that are absolutely essential and non-deferable can be authorized to go ahead. All such projects are reviewed by a CPA committee of unpaid outstanding citizens familiar with local necessities. So that the public is kept informed, a newspaperman sits on each such committee.

Both in this column and elsewhere a lot has been written about the CPA control order. Everyone knows that the veterans need jobs as well as homes. Everyone admits that a certain amount of commercial, industrial and educational construction must go ahead. The $64 question is "How much?"

It would be disastrous if, in our eagerness to build homes for veterans, we wrecked their chances to earn a living. CPA's operation of its construction control order will be guided by the belief that veterans' housing and the minimum essential reconversion of industry and commerce can and must go forward together.

Answers Critics

UPON OCCASIONS, we have been criticized for not stopping construction which was under way prior to the issuance of our order. In my opinion, for the Government to step in and stop construction already legally under way would not be fair or equitable. Many veterans with whom I have discussed this matter agree with OPA's position.

So long as building materials are scarce every citizen who wants to help veterans' housing can do it by deferring all the construction, repair, or maintenance that he possibly can. In the aggregate the deferring of small jobs that require scarce materials would greatly ease the situation.

During the war industrial America had its problems—plenty of them—but they were solved. People were reasonable and tolerant and reconciled their differences. As a result, production soared to amazing heights.

Today industrial America has different, and in many ways more difficult problems. Yet the need for production, for steady, sustained, all-out production; for a flood of goods at competitive prices, is greater now than ever before. Give us that flood of goods for the next five or six months, and we will have licked inflation and be on the high road leading toward sound prosperity, and the highest standard of living in the history of mankind.

We need not, we must not, fumble our country's golden opportunity and I, for one, am convinced that we will not.

Major Markets Face Three-Day Suspension

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Principal security and commodity markets in the United States and Canada will close up shop at the end of business today for a three-day holiday that will carry through next Monday, Labor Day.

The Chicago Board of Trade and scattered livestock markets will function tomorrow, Saturday, as usual, as other trading centers adhere to the summer schedule that has kept most of them darkened through June, July, August and for many will continue until the end of September.

Monday will bring a complete shutdown of everything both at home and in Canada.

Newsprint Price Up 118% in 13 Years

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The pressing problem of newsprint, which has risen 118 per cent in price since the rock bottom of $34 a ton in 1933, is influencing newspapers in many areas to increase circulation rates, reports by publishers indicate.

An examination of available records shows that more than 40 newspapers have announced rate increases since July 1, and one newspaper, the Batavia (N. Y.) Times, said it was discontinuing after 129 years of continuous publication "because of the high cost of paper, labor, and replacement of machinery."

Hotel Music Strike Voted For Labor Day

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—A strike of musicians in 51 large New York hotels on Labor Day was voted today, after wage negotiations between the hotels and the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) collapsed.

The vote authorized 3000 musicians to put down their instruments at 12:01 a. m. Labor Day.

It was said every hotel involved in the dispute would be picketed.

The union's executive board was authorized to call a strike against restaurants and night clubs if pending negotiations fail.

Harry Suber, strike benefit committee chairman, said the union had one million dollars to support the strike.

Hotel officials have said the union wants wage boosts ranging from 25 to 50 per cent.

The union said "all the bands, up to the biggest name band," would be affected by the walkout.

Some of the hotels already have given two-week dismissal notices to scale and rumba bands.

David Drechsler, counsel for most of the hotels, said they had declined to agree to a union proposal to "impose" a retroactivity provision.

Augustana Church Extends Call to Duluth Minister

Augustana Lutheran Church, New Hampshire ave. and V st. nw., announced yesterday that it has extended a call to the Rev. Clarence Nelson of Duluth, Minn.

Hjelm

If Mr. Nelson accepts, he will succeed Dr. Arthur O. Hjelm, who left the church this week for Wichita, Kans., where he will become pastor of the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church.

Dr. Hjelm served the Augustana congregation for nine years, building it from a group of 92 adults meeting in a hotel ballroom to a membership of 800 owning its own church. Before coming to Washington Dr. Hjelm was minister to congregations in Worcester, Mass., and Chicago.

D. C. Salvation Army Directors Transferred to Virginia Area

Maj. and Mrs. James Longino, directors of the Salvation Army in Washington for the past five years, have been transferred to Richmond, Va., where they will be in charge of the Virginia division.

They will be succeeded here by Brigadier Wesley W. Bouterse, now in command of the Carolinas division.

The transfers to become effective early next month are part of a Nation-wide shakeup of personnel to place Brigadier and Mrs. Ray Gearing, now in charge of the Salvation Army in Texas, in command of a new division in Mexico.

As divisional commander in Washington Major Longino has been an active member of Rotary Club and the American Camping Association. Recently he was elected vice president of the Washington Ministerial Union and he has served as president of the executive conference of the Community Chest.

Mrs. Longino, who has been in charge of the Salvation Army Women's program, is a member of the War Hospitality Committee and director of a group of volunteer workers making weekly visits to Washington institutions.

Official farewell services will be held at the Washington Temple Corps, 606 E st. nw., Friday at 8 p. m. The citizens advisory board will hold a luncheon meeting in their honor September 9 at noon at the Evangeline, 1330 L st. nw.

China's Need Of Christianity Held Desperate

China has a desperate need for Christianity, according to Leland S. Brubaker, director of missions and relief in the Orient for the Church of the Brethren.

The religious leader, who has just returned from a 25,000-mile two-month tour of the Far East, found that old forms of religion have nearly vanished.

Because of a systematic destruction of Chinese temples "there is nothing left for the Chinese to cling to," Brubaker said.

"Religiously they are at one of the most critical stages of history. Never before has the Christian church had such an opportunity."

He emphasized that Chinese Christians have not lost faith and that they form a nucleus for building a powerful church.

"The first step is to get missionaries—many of them—back as quickly as possible," Brubaker stated.

Calvary to Get Minister of Music

Clyde J. Holt, formerly of the Petworth Baptist Church, will join the Calvary Baptist Church tomorrow as minister of music.

Holt

A graduate of the Westminster Choir College at Princeton, N. J., he succeeds Herbert V. Pate who recently was appointed to the faculty of that school.

Communion service generally held at Calvary Church on the first Sunday of the month will be postponed a week until the return of the pastor, Dr. Clarence W. Cranford.

Vacuum Cleaner Output Exceeds Prewar Rate

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (AP).—Vacuum cleaner production in the country reached a total output of 192,635 units in July of this year, compared with 161,631 in June and 155,843 in July, 1941, the last prewar year of full production in the industry, C. G. Frantz, secretary-treasurer of the Vacuum Cleaner Manufacturers' Association, reported today.

Outdoor Services

Two Catholic University professors, the Rev. Dr. John Quasten, dean of the School of Sacred Theology, and the Rev. Dr. William J. McDonald, assistant professor of philosophy, now visiting in Rome, have had audiences with Pope Pius XII.

Dr. Ormsbee Get Post With Church Agency

A veteran social welfare worker, Dr. Hazel G. Ormsbee of New York City, has been appointed executive secretary of the new Displaced Subdivision of Church World Service, the interchurch relief agency.

She will have charge of the American churches' program dealing with the resettlement of war orphans and homeless Christian families in America and other countries.

Four hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been granted to the agency for the rest of the year to provide an estimated 1100 persons with passage, shelter and resettlement. A million-dollar budget is needed in 1947, according to Dr. Robbins W. Barstow, director of the organization's service division.

Dr. Ormsbee, former field representative for the American Federation of International Institutes, was for seven years head of the personnel bureau of the YWCA national board.

Auto Production Drops to 73,305

Detroit, Aug. 30 (AP).—Ward's Automotive Reports today estimated this week's production of passenger automobiles and trucks in the United States and Canada at 73,305 units compared with last week's revised total of 91,360.

The virtually complete suspension of operations by Chrysler Corp. accounted for the sharp decline.

Preliminary estimates by Ward's place August output of cars and trucks at 362,765 units, the highest month's production since before the war. The previous postwar high was the July volume of 330,764 units.

The industry also continues to feel the shortage of low carbon steel wire, used in the manufacture of springs for seat cushions, Ward's asserts.

Forum Tomorrow In Franklin Park

The Right Rev. Msgr. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, will be chairman of the evening forum of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild, tomorrow from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. in Franklin Park, 14th and K sts. nw.

The afternoon forum from 3 to 5 p. m. in Franklin Park will be under the direction of Francis H. Thornton. Miss Alice Hill will speak on "Prayer," Miss Helen Connolly on "Confession," and Charles J. Poiejz on "The Mass."

Youth Secretary Resigns

Talks on Prerace Examinations Of Race Horses Due at Meeting

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—A meeting to consider the advisability of prerace tests to discover possible stimulation of horses will be held by the Maryland Racing Commission and representatives of trainers, breeders and racing associations.

Commission Chairman George P. Mahoney said a "beneficial innovation" may develop from the meeting, scheduled for September 18.

Also up for discussion will be the agency's new rule governing stimulation. The Maryland Court of Appeals recently invalidated a regulation making trainers solely responsible for any drugging, whether or not they could be proved guilty of administering the stimulant.

The new rule makes trainers responsible for protecting horses against stimulators.

Mahoney said the "importance of the meeting is well realized by interested parties who have given definite assurance of their presence."

They will include representatives of the American Trainers Association, the nine Maryland racing associations, the Maryland Horsebreeders Association, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, and tthe Racing Commission's veterinarians, pharmacologists, and chemists.

Warrenton Show Today

The impressive contingent of equine talent from the Washington area traveling to Warrenton, Va., is primed for the stiffest competition since prewar days. The forty-seventh holding of the annual Warrenton Horse Show, known among horsemen as the "hunter show of America," is scheduled for today, Sunday and Monday. For the first time in the show's history night sessions will be held.

The show starts at 9 a. m. today, continuing throughout the day, with an evening session scheduled at 8 p. m.

The Washington area will be adequately represented in the conformation hunter division by Dr. and Mrs. A. I. Kay's Portmaker and Phantom Raider, Admiral and Mrs. Forrest Sherman's Beale Walk, Mrs. Stedman Teller's Gracias and Marbert Farm's Ferry Landing. Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Bradley's Hy-Glo will compete in the working hunter division.

The jumper divisions representation is the most formidable and includes Cheerie McKee's Apple Jack and Lady Jack, Dr. and Mrs. Kay's Smacko, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bogley's Ringmaster, Al Earnest's Dickie Boy, Mrs. Betty Hurst's Greylark and Marbert Farm's Red Water and Red Haste. Ballantrae Farms, McLean, Va., will be represented by Ballantrae Boy, Aristocrat, Stealaway and Irish Lad.

Worsham's 72 Trails Hogan

Los Angeles, Aug. 30 (AP).—Favorite Ben Hogan, fresh from his victory in the National PGA tourney, blasted out a five-under par 66 today to assume a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $15,000 Golden State Golf Tournament at the California Country Club.

One stroke behind the dynamic lightweight was Herman Keiser, Akron, Ohio, with 33, 34—67. Keiser, winner of Bobby Jones' Masters tourney, had five birdies but he slipped one over on the fifteenth.

As the first half of the steller field of 144 completed the opening round of the 72-hole joust, Toney Penna, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Veteran Jack Gage, San Bernardino, Calif., were close up with 69s.

Lew Worsham, Washington, D. C., stood well up with 35, 37—72.

West River Regatta Opens

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—The seventeenth Annual West Sailing Club Regatta opened informally tonight with a race from Annapolis to West River by 12 members of the Annapolis Yacht Club.

Craft used in the Annapolis-West River contest included round bottoms, hamptons and chimes.

The formal program will open at 10 a. m. tomorrow, with the 20-foot class division 1, starting off the 10-event two-day regatta.

Bears, Giants Open Action

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Chicago Bears and New York Giants of the National Football League tomorrow will end preparations for their first action of the 1946 season, an exhibition tangle for military services relief at Wrigley Field Sunday afternoon.

Owner-Coach George Halas, whose Bears' dynasty crumbled while he was in the Navy, will bring a 50-member squad from the Bears' Collegeville, Ind., training camp in time for a Saturday drill.

The Giants' 54-player squad has been hard at work under Coach Steven Owen at Superior, Wis., where such "freshmen" as DeWitt Coulter, All-American Army tackle, and Jim White, former Notre Dame tackle, have displayed first team form.

Boyanks Chosen For Bears' Tangle

Danvers, Mass., Aug. 30 (AP).—After two solid weeks of pre-season drills, Coach Herb Kopf today named a tentative Boston Yanks starting line-up for the exhibition game against the Chicago Bears next Thursday night at Braves Field.

The backfield had Paul Governali, quarterback; Mike Micke and Babe Dimancheff, halfbacks, and Johnny Grigas, fullback. He named Don Currivan and Sam Goldman, ends; Tom Dean and Don Deeks, tackles; Rocco Canale and Joe Zeno, guards, and Jim Magee, center.

Vernon Rests—Gains

Mickey Vernon didn't lift a bat yesterday but saw his American League batting lead jump to four points. While the Nats were idle, Boston's Ted Williams and Johnny Pesky collected only two hits between them in 14 times up. Ted got one for six, dropping him to .338, and Johnny got one for eight to leave him also at 338. How they stand:

Vernon	120	474	73	162 .342
Pesky	131	536	110	181 .338

Game Quotas Fixed In State Forests

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Game quotas in four State forests in which limited hunting will be permitted beginning October 5 were announced by the conservation commission. They included:

Seneca—deer 50; ruffed grouse, 100; cottontail rabbit, 100; grey and fox squirrels, 500; other game, none. Cabwaylingo — Cottontail rabbits, 100; quail, 50; grey squirrels, 300; other game, none. Cooper's Rock—Deer, 75; ruffed grouse, 75; grey squirrels, 100. Kubbrabow—Ruffed grouse, 100; other game, none.

Cops Lose at Golf

The Baltimore Fire Department defeated the Washington Police Department 19-man golf team, 15½-14½, yesterday at Mount Pleasant Golf Course in Baltimore.

Keitle Kallis was low scorer for Washington with a 77.

Wooderson Runs Today

London, Aug. 30 (AP).—Sydney Wooderson, winner of the 5000 meters at the recent Oslo games, will attack the British 2-mile record of 9 minutes 3.5 second at the Blackheath Harriers meet Saturday.

Boosox Roll On, Swamp A's Twice More

Boston, Aug. 30 (AP).—With Tex Hughson and Jim Bagby giving artistic pitching performances, the Boston Red Sox today swept a doubleheader with the lowly Philadelphia Athletics, 6-0 and 6-2.

Hughson limited the A's to four scattered singles while gaining the shutout that marked his fifteenth win. The Sockers collected all nine of their hits against starter Luther Knerr before chasing him from the mound with a five-run barrage in the fifth inning.

During the fourth frame, Art Passarella, umpiring behind the plate, had his jaw, which was seriously injured in Washington earlier in the season, dislocated by a foul tip and left the game.

While Bagby was limiting the visitors to five hits in the nightcap, Rudy York bashed out his fifteenth homer for the Sockers against Phil Marchildon, who also went the full distance.

Ted Williams was credited with only one hit for his six tries during the twin bill. The Splendid Splinter beat out a bunt as leadoff in the eighth inning of the second game, it was the first time he had tried to gain base in such fashion since he returned from his Marine flying service.

Elmer Valo, however, robbed Williams of a homer in the sixth inning of the opener, when, with two on and two out, he made a leaping glove-hand catch of a drive that was earmarked for the right-field bullpen.

Yale Coaches In Shuffle

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 30 (AP).—Yale Athletic Director Robert J. H. Kiphuth announced today 10 appointments or reappointments to the football coaching staff.

James Deangelis of New Haven, an outstanding Yale lineman more than 10 years ago, was named head freshman coach, and Philip Moonves, former Penn State halfback, was named head coach of the junior vasity.

Such former Yale stars as Albie Booth, the Walker Brothers, Blake and Paul, Tommy Smith and Dave Hoopes were named assistants as were Delaney Kiphuth, Earl Ziegler and Stu Clancy.

Juniors Lose To Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Aug 30.—A sharpshooting Baltimore team, fortified particularly in the older age groups, defeated a picked Washington team, 8-4, today on the spacious country oclub of Maryland layout in the first of the inter-city junior links matches.

Each team contributed four individual match victories, but the Baltimoreans held the best ball edge in all foursomes.

Johnny Bruff, representing Baltimore, captured medal honors, coming in with a 1 over par 73.

Johnny Walker Wins

Billy Baumgartner, Baltimore, whipped Lou Swarthout, Washington, 2 and 1 and Leo Halsbeck, Baltimore, defeated Dave Clark, Washington, by the same score. Baltimore took the best ball, 3 and 2.

Th ecapital's initial victory came in the 18-20 age group when John Walker, recently crowned Columbia Country Club junior titlist, retired Dick Mullens, 2 and 1. In the other match, Bruff, captain of the triumphant team, swamped Alan Weisberg, 7 and 6. Baltimore was best ball, 3 and 2.

Jay Wolfe, Washington, edged Eddie Cover, 1 up, and Bubby Worsham, Washington Post schoolboy titlist, defeated Wally Gayhor, 6 and 5, but the winners had a best ball of 2 and 1.

Return Match Sept. 15

Billy Ruppert upset Stan Mouser, Washington, 5 and 3, and Gene Wolfe, Washington, defeated Melvin Kreider, 2 and 1. Baltimore won the best ball, 2 up.

Washington will be host in a return match, tentatively scheduled for Thursday, September 5, at Manor Club.

Next Tuesday the District Golf Association will sponsor the District junior Open championship at Manor Club. Play will be staged in four age groups with the low gross finisher recognized as the D. C. titlist.

Kramer Joins Bulldogs

Arthur Kramer, former Central High School lineman, has been accepted at Yale University. Kramer is now in Washington, Conn., attending Coach Howie Odell's preseason practice.

FEW PERSONS believe that Tami Mauriello stands more than a ghost of a chance against Joe Louis in their heavyweight championship fight at Yankee Stadium, New York City, September 18. But this picture shows that Tami is taking himself—and the fight—seriously as he slams away at a punching bag at his training camp, Jumping Brook Country Club, Neptune, N. J.

Foxhunting Meet Set

The fourteenth annual horse show and races sponsored by the Maryland Foxhunters Association will be held Monday September 2, at the Marrian Curran Farm, Four Corners, Md. It begins at 10:30 a. m. Twelve classes are listed with hunter and jumper championships, climaxed by two flat races and a fox hunters' race.

Although scheduled on the same date as the Warrenton show, the entry list will be larger than in previous years, including such outstanding performers as Mr. and Mrs. George J. Mueller's Ballela, Mrs. Lee Counselman's Kristi, Anne Hagner's After Dark, Bobby Lee's Bonne Fille, J. B. Bland's Greystone, Mrs. William Gary's Tom Tom, Mrs. John Curry's Smoky Mist, Mrs. Richard Humes' Ta-Bu, Betty Wilson's Pal, Tony Auth's Exams, William Gary's Jerry, Mrs. E. C. Cannon's Golden Nellie, Louise Jennings' Zelda, Ray Winchester's Betty Blue, R. Groves' Mr. Taylor. Dandy and Suitland Stable's Red Wing and Doodles.

L. Stanley Jones from Orange, Va., is bringing back into competition, after several years of retirement, his consistent blue ribbon winner Jeremiah. From Belle Meade, Va., Harry de Mawby will enter High-Type, a promising open jumper making his initial show ring appearance, while from Baltimore will come H. O. Firor's Cherry Bounce and Jitney Jingle, Penny Delo's Party Miss and L. W. Cresswell's Silver Horn.

Both flat races, one three-quarters of a mile and the other 1 1-16, are to be ridden at catch weights and in colors. The fox hunters race will be run over a two-mile flagged timber course, limited to gentlemen riders who are required to wear hunting pink.

Mrs. Awalt's 95 Low Score

Mrs. F. G. Awalt topped the field in the ladies' weekly guest day at Congressional Country Club yesterday, posting the low gross, 95. Three strokes back of the leader was Mrs. Marian Falls, Columbia, with a 98.

Mrs. Marvin Wire, Kenwood, paced the net winners with a card of 101—21—80. Her clubmate, Mrs. G. E. Peterson, 104—16—88, was second low net.

Miss I. Kelley, also of Kenwood, won the visitors' Class B prize with 103—20—83, followed by Mrs. George W. Calvert, Washington Golf and Country Club, 106—23—83.

In the closed event for Class B players, Mrs. E. S. Hampton, 99—16—83, was the winner. Mrs. C. J. Wilkinson, 107—22—85, won second prize.

Mungo Ousted By Minors' Chief

Durham, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP).—Van Lingle Mungo, former major league pitcher and Clinton manager in North Carolina's Class D Tobacco State League this season, was suspended today for the rest of the season by President W. G. Branham, of the National Association of Minor Leagues, as an outgrowth of a scuffle with Gus Brittain, Wilmington manager.

The disturbance came during a game August 13 at Wilmington. Brittain was placed on the ineligible list and fined $50.

Reiser Taking Theft Title In a Walk

By Joe Reichler

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Pete Reiser, fleet Brooklyn Dodger outfielder, far out in front of the National League stolen base championship, already has pilfered the most bases since Pepper Martin stole 34 for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1934. Reiser stole his thirtieth yesterday.

Stan Hack, who held down third base for the Chicago Cubs for 13 years and is currently sidelined with a fractured finger, is being mentioned as the possible 1947 manager of the Los Angeles club in the Pacific Coast League. Hack is a native Californian and Los Angeles is a Cub farm.

The Cincinnati Reds, who set a record in their pennant-winning 1940 season by winning 41 games by one-run margins, are on their way to losing the most one-run margin games. Of their first 119 games this season, the Reds have played 57 in which the decision was decided by one run and the Reds lost 33 of them.

The St. Louis Browns threaten to set a record for fewest stolen bases. In their first 124 games they were credited with only 14 stolen bases. Three clubs are tied for fewest stolen bases—with 19—the 1934 New York Giants, 1938 Cincinnati Reds and 1945 Cleveland Indians.

The Boston Braves, who last year slammed 101 homers to rank second to the New York Giants in the National League, are trailing all major league clubs in round trippers this year with 32.

Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox became the first player in the American League to hammer home a home run in every park. He completed the cycle last August 10 when he banged a pair of round trippers in Yankee Stadium. Three players in the National League, Johnny Mize, New York; Grady Hatton, Cincinnati, and Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, need four baggers in Brooklyn to complete the cycle.

A third-place finish means a $5000 bonus for Billy Southworth, manager of the Boston Braves, not to mention a few hundred dollars for every Brave from the World Series money. The Braves are currently in fourth place, 5½ games behind the Chicago Cubs.

Only a 'Friend' Can Get You Army-Navy Game Seats

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—Unless civilians have a "friend" who is a member of the Army or Navy Athletic Association they will have little chance of seeing the Army-Navy football game Navember 30 at Philadelphia.

Capt. Edmund B. Taylor, Navy director of athletics, said today that the sale of Army-Navy game tickets would be restricted to members of the Athletic Associations.

Application blanks for other tickets have gone out from the Naval Academy, he said.

He explained the action was necessary "because our Athletic Association membership (alumni and midshipmen) is of such size that even by restricting each member to a minimum they will still require all the tickets in our half of the stadium for the football game.

He added that the Navy regretted the size of the stadium prevented it from "accommodating requests from all interested parties for this game."

Navy's allotment for the annual football classic is 50,000 tickets.

It Says Here: 'Watch Yale'

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Coach Howie Odell looked over his Yale football men today and agreed with Father Divine that, "Peace, it's wonderful."

The football Johnnies have come marching home from the wars and Odell figures he's got the best team of his career. The only blight on his happiness is that most every other coach feels the same way about it.

Nineteen of Odell's men have seen military service, and he expects they will provide a definite spark to his squad of 33 lettermen who are pointing up for the opening game a month hence.

Freshman material, also available for varsity duty, is more sweet music to Odell, who regards Levi Jackson, local Negro back who made All-State the past two years in high school, as another Glen Davis.

Other impressive yearlings, coming in from Great Lakes, include Bob Jablonski and Vic Frank, guards; Ron Behrens and John Setear, ends, and Fred Nadherny of Chicago, a Great Lakes alumnus.

Odell's chief worry: Whether service stints have hurt veterans physically.

General consensus: Penn is grade A in the Ivy League; Yale and Columbia tied as runners-up; Cornell, Harvard and Princeton trailing closely; Dartmouth and Brown, showing promise.

Russia May Get Baseball

Milwaukee, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Army and Navy Union today considered a plan to uniform and equip 1000 baseball teams in Russia "to make friends of the Russian people."

The resolution, laid before the union's 58th annual national encampment by the organization's national council of administration, declared that:

"The rulers of Russia are not to be confused with the people of Russia. We must treat the rulers with fairness and firmness, but we must treat the people as fellow human beings and as friends. We can launch this program through the many Army and Navy Union members who are connected with our embassy in Russia."

Bidwell Snubs Topping Threat

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP).—Owner Charley Bidwill of the Chicago Cardinals today curtly dismissed a threat by the New York Yankees of the All-America Football Conference to bring suit for services of Guard Gerard Ramsey.

Owner Dan Topping of the Yankees said at Pasadena, Calif., last night he would give Ramsey one week to leave the National Football League's Cardinals and join his club, or face legal action. Coach Jimmy Conzelman of the Cards said Ramsey originally was signed by the Chicago club in 1942 and resigned after his discharge from service.

Mrs. Ogden Edwards, Horse Owner, Dies

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, jr., owner of Walnut Hill Farm and one of the country's most generous donors to charity, died today.

After the death of her husband, Dr. Ogden M. Edwards, jr., in 1940, Mrs. Edwards became sole owner of the 3600-acre Walnut Hill Farm, one of the world's foremost nurseries for harness horses. Her only son, Harkness Edwards, managed the farm until his death May 12.

Red Sox Buy Infielder

Boston, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox tonight announced the purchase of Third Baseman George Strickland from the New Orleans Southern Association club for spring delivery. Strickland, a war veteran, made his professional debut this season. He is 20 years old and stands six-foot-two. He was batting only .240 the last time the Red Sox checked his average.

Petra Leads Off In U. S. Net Play

Towering Frenchman Faces 'Comer' In Opening Feature at Forest Hills

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Yvon Petra, the 6-foot, 5-inch stringbean from France who scored a surprise triumph in the first postwar Wimbledon tournament, has been given the honor of prying open the National Tennis Championships tomorrow at Forest Hills.

The first match o the stadium court will find the big fellow, top seeded among the foreign contingent, matched with Harold Burrows of Charlottesville, Va. Although Burrows is considered a comer, it was believed unlikely that he would extend Petra, a terrific server, past the necessary three sets.

Other opening round matches on the show court will pit Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., against Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif.; William F. Talbert of Wilmington, Del., vs. Bill Vogt of Philadelphia; Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies vs. Mrs. Virginia Wolfenden Kovacs of San Francisco and Tom Brown, jr., of San Francisco vs. Fred Kovaleski of Detroit.

Those who wish to see Frankie Parker, the two-time champ, open the defense of his laurels will be forced to visit the less fashionable grandstand court, where Frankie will engage Brendan Macken, a Canadian, who is a student at William and Mary.

Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, a heavy favorite to capture her fourth women's crown in the absence of Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, who is not defending, was scheduled to open on an outside court against Barbara Wilkins of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Dyer Expects Fight Right Up to Finish

St. Louis, Aug. 30 (AP).—Eddie Dyer, never one to take a long lead off base when it comes to making predictions, pondered the fast-mounting wave of optimism over the Cardinals' pennant chances today and said:

"I think it'll be a close race with Brooklyn right down to the wire."

"It's going to be a tough race, and we and the Dodgers have each other to beat," the Cardinal manager said. "I wouldn't be surprised if the last five games here—two with Cincinnati and three with Chicago—are decisive."

Dyer remarked for the third time "I don't think I should say too much because, after all, I'm only a freshman manager," and then admitted that the morale of his players had umped considerably in the past three days.

The Redbirds, in a tie with Brooklyn for the National League lead on Tuesday, now are sporting a margin of 2½ games.

Schedule Favors "Bums"

"But the boys had the feeling all along, even when we were 7½ games behind, that we were still in there," Dyer continued.

"The Dodgers have an edge on us for the remainder of their schedule, but we've had a good road team all year. We've won more than half our games on every trip."

The soft-spoken Texan took one of his infrequent looks into the crystal ball and declared—with no reservation—that neither Brooklyn nor St. Louis would be a push-over for the Boston Red Sox in the World Series.

"Either team can give the Red Sox a hell of a battle in the series. You can't tell what'll happen in a short series, but I'll say this: Boston can't be compared with the old-time Yankees. They're just not in the same class.

"Sure, Ted Williams is one of the great hitters of baseball, but I think I have one, too, in Stan Musial.

Lanier Loss a Blow

"My pitching staff is not as deep as I'd like for it to be, and that keeps me from making a lot of moves I'd like to make. I have to be careful when I think about pulling a pitcher out of there.

"Most of them have to have their rest, and warming up for relief jobs takes the edge off them for their next start," Dyer explained.

"I believe I took the hardest single blow of any manager this year in the loss of Max Lanier (who jumped to the Mexican League). All of the clubs have had their troubles, especially Charlie Grimm at Chicago with the injuries he's had.

"I'll be fair and say that the loss of Luis Ulmo (also in Mexico) hurt Durocher. He needed that man.

"But it's different about Mickey Owen. I think Owen would be the second-string catcher if he were back with Brooklyn. Bruce Edwards has turned into a great player since they brought him up. He's shown a lot of improvement.

"I don't go with those Eastern sports writers who think Durocher has been having to pull miracles to keep the Dodgers up there. They have a great ball club."

Meade Gains Final With 4-2 Victory

12 Juveniles In Spa Race

By Sid Feder

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP).—The East's top 2-year-old gallopers, who have been spinning around like so many merry-go-round horses this season—and have gone just about as far toward picking a champion—figure to do some straightening out on the matter at the Spa tomorrow.

Twelve of them, headed by three of the current meeting's stake winners and the Arlington Futurity glamour boy, Cosmic Bomb, collide in the 42d running of the classic Hopeful Stakes, racing's annual late-summer feature for juveniles.

The 6½-furlong dash—first time this year the "babies" have gone that far—not only carries a $46,950 paycheck for the winner but also should go a long way toward untangling the juvenile title scramble, at least for the East, pending such fall developments as the Belmont and Pimlico Futurities.

This field of 12, in which the rapid-running Blue Border figures to go to the post the favorite, amounts to a rodeo compared with the contenders in the ancient Saratoga Cup, co-feature of this getaway day card of the Spa's most successful Spa meeting.

Just two horses accepted the shot at the $11,150 winner's purse in this mile-and-six-furlong grind, and Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie figures to get to the paying teller's window in front of Walter Jeffords' Trymenow.

If he does, the one-time $1500 selling plater will skyrocket up to fourth place among the turf's all-time top money winners. He already has $365,090 in the bank.

Colonials Get A 'Scat' Back

A young man who can scoot over 100 yards in 9.8 seconds showed up unexpectedly at George Washington University yesterday and the school's football coaches immediately chorused, "He's just what we've been looking for."

The lad's name is Bob Truck and he comes from Pennsylvania, where he was some shucks in high school football. That's about all the background information the excited coaches found out for the nonce.

But they satisfied themselves as to his speed right away.

Truck came out of nowhere, so the coaches say, and remarked that he had heard the Colonials could use a scat back.

Right. So the coaches put a pair of football shoes on him and let him run. He showed enough to be convincing. Later in the day, he took his first workout with the squad and sold himself for sure.

Truck isn't big—rather short, weighs 175 pounds—but if he's as good under fire as he is just fooling around, the Colonials figure they'll go trucking along this fall.

15 Changes Tentatively Adopted in Virginia Game Laws

Maryland, Virginia

BALTIMORE (AP).—The fifty fifth regatta of the Middle States Rowing Association, to be held here Sunday under sponsorship of the Arundel Boat Club, is expected to attract oarsmen from all sections of the country.

One of the features of the event will be the resumption of rivalry between two of the Nation's top scullers—Larry Keifer and Mike McCreech, both of Philadelphia. Keifer won over McCreech in their last meeting.

Richmond, Va. (AP).—The renewal of the State team golf tournament, sponsored by the Richmond News Leader and scheduled for the Farmington Country Club, Charlottesville, Sunday, September 8, is expected to draw entries from approximately 12 Virginia country clubs. Hermitage Country Club of Richmond is the defending champion.

Emory, Va. (AP).—Emory and Henry's Wasps will open their 1946 football season with Milligan at Bristol September 21 and close with Western Carolina Teachers at Abingdon November 23.

The 10-game schedule:

September 21—Milligan at Bristol; September 28—Guilford at Greensboro, N. C.

October 5—Carson-Newman at Bristol; October 12—Eastern Tennessee State College at Johnson City, Tenn.; October 19—Tusculum at Abingdon; October 26—Maryville at Bristol.

November 1—Newport News Apprentice School at Newport News; November 9—Eastern Tennessee State at Abingdon; November 16—Concord College at Athens, W. Va., and November 23—Western Carolina Teachers at Abingdon.

Winchester, Va.—Only one local baseball team has a game scheduled for Labor Day, the Winchester White Sox playing North Mountain here. The Sox also have a game slated Sunday here with the Front Royal Dodgers. Winchester Park will play White Post on Sunday.

Lexington, Va. (AP).—Washington and Lee University's tennis hopefuls should cut a wide swath in State net circles next season if the caliber of their tutor is to count for aught. For the General netters will be coached by Fred J. Perry, three times world's amateur and twice world's professional tennis champion. Perry, now a naturalized American citizen, will give tennis instruction at Washington and Lee in the fall and direct the varsity netters in the spring.

The former British Davis Cup star said he intends to develop the game on "an all-around basis without too great an emphasis on intercollegiate competition." Perry said also he plans to maintain his professional tennis contacts.

Winchester, Va.—Otis "Snag" Sargent, who turned out undefeated football and track teams at Handley High School, will resume his duties as assistant athletic director this year under Coach Hunter Maddex, who has returned from the service. Sargent will continue as head coach of track, but will act as assistant for football and basketball.

Richmond Colts Renew Agreement

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Eddie Mooers, owner of the Richmond Colts of the Piedmont League, renewed his club's working agreement with the New York Giants today and vigorously denied reports that the Richmond franchise was for sale.

Earlier today, in Washington, the vice president of the Washington Senators, Calvin Griffith, said that the Senators were interested in purchasing the Richmond franchise. Griffith said by telephone that Washington wanted to expand its farm system, and "I think any club would be glad to get an opportunity to buy the Richmond franchise."

Pirates Suspend Pitcher

Pittsburgh, Aug. 30 (AP).—Ray Kennedy, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, announced today that Pitcher Jim Hopper, farmed under option to Birmingham of the Southern Association early this season, was under indefinite suspension.

Final Action Slated for Next Month

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Fifteen proposed changes in Virginia's game laws have been adopted tentatively by the State game commission and will be adopted finally at a meeting September 21 unless objections are heard, the commission announced today.

Major change proposed by the commission is a reduction in the State-wide daily bag limit on quail from 10 to 8 per day.

Proposals expected to encounter opposition are those permitting a five-day open season on doe deer in Chesterfield County and a proposal to eliminate entirely the early squirrel season (September 15-30) in Buckingham and Cumberland Counties.

Deer Too Numerous

In the Chesterfield County case it is contended that deer have become so numerous that crops are being damaged. Previously the commission has flatly refused seasons on doe deer, with the exception of a carefully controlled hunt in certain southside counties, in an effort to bring back the State's once almost extinct deer herds.

Other proposals given tentative approval by the commission follow:

That it shall be lawful to take deer in Shenandoah County from November 15 through November 21.

That the open season for hunting elk, with a bag limit of one a season, shall be November 7 through November 9.

Can't Use Dogs

That it shall be unlawful to use dogs for hunting bear, foxes, and bobcats during the open season for hunting deer in Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Clarke, Frederick, Highland, Page, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Shenandoah, and Warren Counties.

That it shall be unlawful to shoot foxes in that part of Amherst County lying within the National Forest area November 20 through January 5.

That it shall be lawful to take deer in Warwick County November 20 through January 5, with a bag limit of one a season.

That the bag limit for deer in Isle of Wight County shall be one a day, two a season.

That it shall be lawful to take deer, with horns visible at least two inches above the hair, in Spotsylvania County from November 20 through January 5, with a bag limit of one a season.

Where You Can Hunt

That it shall be lawful to hunt deer in Craig, Botetourt and Roanoke Counties north of Route 11; in that part of Tazewell south of the top of Clinch Mountain; in that part of Bland south of Wolf Creek and west of Route 21, and in Giles east of New River November 15-16.

That it shall be lawful to shoot foxes in Madison and Orange Counties October 1 through January 20.

That it shall be lawful to take deer of either sex during the open season November 20 through January 5 in that territory of Sussex and Southampton Counties bounded by Route 604, the east side of Assomoosic Swamp, the Virginian Railroad, east along the track to the Courtland-Ivor State Route 312, northeast to Route 460, and northwest on Route 460 to the intersection with Route 604.

That no rifle smaller than .25-caliber high power may be used for hunting deer west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

That any person killing bear, deer or elk on national forest lands shall attach a big-game tag to the animal for inspection by a game warden or authorized agent of the commission, and that any big game not so tagged shall be forfeited to the Commonwealth.

Braves Buy Pitcher

Boston, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Boston National League Baseball Club today announced the outright purchase of Southpaw Pitcher Glen Elliott of the Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast League. Elliott's record with Seattle this year is 9 won and 10 lost in 32 games.

Seaboard Files Stock Offering; Net Up Sharply

By S. Oliver Goodman

Seaboard Finance Co., whose general headquarters are in Washington, yesterday reported a sharp increase in net income for the three months ended June 30 and revealed plans for a 240,000-share offering of common stock.

Net income of the loan firm, which operates 113 offices in the United States and Canada, totaled $324,747 in the latest three-month period as compared with $60,697 in the like period last year.

The proposed offering of common stock has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, 100,000 shares to be sold by the company and 140,000 shares by selling stockholders. Johnston, Lemon & Co., and Van Alstyne Noel & Co., are principal underwriters. Price to the public will be filed by amendment and Seaboard Finance will use proceeds for corporate purposes. The stock currently is quoted at $18.50 bid a share and $20 offered.

Net earnings for the June 30 period were equal to 37 cents a share on the 775,313 shares of common stock outstanding on June 30. This compared with 12 cents a share in the same 1940 period. For the first nine months of the company's fiscal year, net earnings of $708,985 were equal to 80 cents a common share against $260,854 or 53 cents a share in the same 1945 period.

Balance sheet as of June 30 showed assets of $35,353,183.

IT IS MR. CHARLES TURN TO TAKE THE WATCH AT THE PLANE.. WHEN MR. LEE GOES OFF DUTY TELL HIM TO COME HERE!
I THOUGHT I TOLD YOU TO REPORT BACK TO ME WHEN YOU FINISHED CHECKING OFF THE RELIEF SUPPLY DISTRIBUTION!
THE STUFF MUST BE RATIONED OUT —AND I'M AFRAID WE'RE STUCK TO STAY HERE AND DO IT...OTHERWISE THE MOBSTERS WILL MOVE IN AND STEAL IT AGAIN...
...AND WHILE WE'RE ON THE SUBJECT, NASTY, SUPPOSE YOU TELL ME HOW YOU GOT THE HOODLUMS TO RELEASE THE FOOD THEY TRICKED YOU INTO GIVING THEM!
SURE, I'LL TELL YOU... BUT YOU CAN HARDLY HEAR ME FROM AWAY OVER THERE...
MEANWHILE...
CAP'N CRUSTY, PLEASE TO CHANGE WATCHES WITH SPARKS?
SURE— I CAN GO UP AND MAKE SOME COFFEE WITH TERRY AND BASTALIA!

DID YOU REMEMBER OUR HONEYMOON, CHIP? --IS THAT WHY YOU CHOSE "HAMLET"?
WILL I EVER FORGET?
WE BOTH FELL ASLEEP AND SNORED SHAMELESSLY THROUGH A VERY FINE PERFORMANCE!
--AND DIDN'T WAKE UP... THERE IN THE BALCONY-- TILL AFTER THE THEATER WAS DARK AND EMPTY!
AND YOU FOUND YORICK'S SKULL ON THE STAGE AND MADE A JACK O'LANTERN OF IT WITH YOUR CIGARETTE LIGHTER--AND HELD IT IN A WINDOW TO GET THE NIGHT WATCHMAN'S ATTENTION!
WE DID HAVE FUN TOGETHER, DIDN'T WE, CHERI?
SOMETIMES I WISH THINGS HAD TURNED OUT DIFFENTLY, CHIP!
IS IT TOO LATE EVEN YET?
CURTAIN-- CURTAIN!

LISTEN, MICHAEL --I'VE GOT TO FINISH THE ROUND! I'VE GOT A BET WITH NUTSEY!
WELL, I GUESS WE DON'T GO UNTIL TOMORROW!
DON'T WORRY, MICKEY! THE GUY WE'RE AFTER IS UNDER LOCK AND KEY— HE'LL BE IN WAKEETA WHEN WE GET THERE!
SOMETHING MUST'VE GONE WRONG OR TONY WOULD HAVE CALLED BEFORE TH—
AH! THIS MUST BE HIM NOW!
WAKEETA, EH? IS IT THE PARTY WE THINK IT MIGHT BE?
I'M NOT SURE YET! RENT A CAR AND DRIVE DOWN HERE TONIGHT!

MARK TRAIL

AFTER A FEW DAYS BOB WOODY IS UP AND ABOUT....
AND MARK IS SITTING UP IN BED...
I GUESS THE TIME HAS COME...
BOB, WILL YOU COME WITH ME A MINUTE?...
YOU TWO HAVE BEEN THROUGH SO MUCH TOGETHER, I THINK YOU SHOULD BE INTRODUCED--MARK TRAIL, THIS IS THE FELLOW WHO SAVED YOUR LIFE, MY FIANCE, RANGER BOB WOODY!
ED DODD

PENNY

DON'T YOU FEEL JUST SIMPLY WONDERFUL BEING ENGAGED TO GURNEY, AUNT ELLEN?
YES, DEAR.
THAT'S THE WAY I FEEL BEING ENGAGED TO DOODIE.
REALLY?
YES, IT'S JUST SO SIMPLY WONDERFUL I CAN HARDLY WAIT FOR HIM TO GO AWAY TO SCHOOL....
SO THAT I CAN BE ENGAGED TO RONALD FOR THE FOOTBALL SEASON.

DOLLY

HORACE, ISN'T THIS GREEN CHAIR LOVELY? LET'S TAKE IT!
FURNITURE Sale
LET ME TRY IT FIRST-
MM-- I LOVE GREEN!
IT WON'T DO DEAR-- IT MAKES YOU LOOK GREEN TOO!
IT ISN'T THE CHAIR, DOTTY! I JUST SAW THE PRICE TAG!!

SUPERMAN

FARRELL INDUSTRIES? (YAWN) CAN YOU USE ANOTHER VICE PRESIDENT ON YER BOARD O' DIRECTORS?
NO! WE'VE TOO MANY LOAFERS RIGHT NOW!
TCH! TCH! TOO BAD!
(— HAW! NO ONE CAN SAY I DIDN'T TRY! —)
NOW THAT I DID MY DUTY... I CAN... SNOOZE... Z-Z-Z-Z...

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'Shadow of a Woman' Almost Thinks, Thanks To Warner's B-Hive

TO "B" OR NOT TO "B"? That is the question which presumably plagued the Warner Brothers when they got around to picturizing Virginia Perdue's novel, "He Fell Down Dead."

Unfortunately, they decided to "B".

William Prince

So "Shadow of a Woman"—that is what they call it now—the new picture at the Metropolitan Theater, turned out to "B" something disturbingly less than devastating entertainment.

In adapting the melancholy tale to the cameras, Whitman Chambers and C. Graham Baker contrived a script without any saving grace of clever writing, dramatic intensity or relieving humor to veil the triteness of its theme.

That theme is the familiar one of the precipitate marriage of two virtual strangers and the bride's speedy discovery that her husband is a homicidal maniac, intent on doing away with everyone who doubts his skill as a charlatan masquerading as an eminent physician.

The pedestrian drama is unfolded by the flashback method as the disillusioned wife relates the circumstances of an untoward number of murderous acts and their effects on the lives of her husband's "patients," his former wife, the small son of the previous marriage, a crippled nephew and divers and sundry others eager to get Dr. Eric Ryder before he gets them.

Under Heavy Handicaps

Helmut Dantine, it seemed to me yesterday, gave a particularly artificial and perfunctory performance as the specious specialist, with Andrea King doing a shade better as the wife, with dialogue and situations that were anything but inspirational.

William Prince, cast as a young attorney straddling the marital fence, had naturalness, at least, on his side, and Peggy Knudsen, Lisa Golm, Larry Geiger, Paul Stanton, Master Don McGuire and the veteran Monte Blue probably got as much out of the material at their disposal as there was in it.

William Jacobs' production and Joseph Santley's direction had little to offer in the way of redemption.

The short subjects did rather better in this regard for the Met's new bill. "Under Water Spear Fishing" and "Hawaiian Memories," both in Technicolor, are thoroughly diverting, even if repetitious in the item of undersea fishing, and Paramount News reflects much that is hot in the daily headlines.

Forced to depart from usual custom by the volume of business attracted to the National during the first half of its two-week engagement, Magician Harry Blackstone's "Show of 1001 Wonders" will present both matinee and night performances tomorrow. Last of the master magicians offering a complete evening of mystifying entertainment, Blackstone has been packing them in.

Recognized by showmen as one of the greatest holidays of the year in the theater, Labor Day will be marked by special matinee performances in practically all of the motion picture houses in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia. The Warner Brothers neighborhood theaters in which daily matinees are not fixed policy will open their doors at 12:30 p. m., with the first performance at 1.

Something Will Be Added

Beginning today and continuing through Tuesday, the Little Theater will expand its program into a double-feature bill.

To "East Side of Heaven," in which Bing Crosby sings a group of his most popular ballads, will be added the taut drama of "The Fallen Angel," costarring John Garfield and Maureen O'Hara. The combination should appease a wide catholicity of taste.

On Wednesday the Little will inaugurate a single week's revival engagement of "Jane Eyre," to be followed seven days later, September 11, by the new French importation, "It Happened at the Inn," which has been dangling on the horizon for several weeks now—or will have been by the eleventh.

Public enthusiasm was so great and subsequent demand has been so insistent that "The True Glory," ostensibly winding up the Washington Post-Public Library series of documentary film bills last Tuesday evening, will be repeated next Tuesday evening. Performances will be given at 7 and 9 p. m. in the Interior Department auditorium. No admission charge is assessed for these complimentary showings. In or out of the commercial theater, "The True Glory" is a master picture—the greatest to come out of the war.

The Montgomery players are holding open tryouts for "The Late George Apley," opening play of their new season, at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center, on Norwood dr., on Wednesday, September 4, at 8:30 p. m. Requiring a cast of 16, "Apley" will afford several acting opportunities for new as well as experienced players. Wednesday's auditions will be under the direction of Harrison Hathaway. Aspirants need not supply their own material. Tryouts will be conducted from the script of the play.

For the benefit of those who missed it at the Earle, "Night and Day," one of the most enjoyable Technicolor musicals ever made, will be resuming its downtown run at the Metropolitan next Thursday. When the Earle has awakened from "The Big Sleep," its attraction will be the new film version of W. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," costarring Paul Henreid, in the role created by the late Leslie Howard, and Eleanor Parker, in the part that brought stardom to Bette Davis.

If-You-Get-One Note

Happy holiday!

Turner—Shrewsbury

Mr. and Mrs. Aquila Turner, Aquasco, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Emily Blanche, to William J. Shrewsbury, Upper Marlboro, Md.

Miss Turner is a graduate of Teachers' College, Salisbury, Md., and the University of Maryland. Mr. Shrewsbury is son of the Rev. J. C. M. Shrewsbury, rector of Trinity Church, Upper Marlboro. He attended the University of Maryland and is a graduate of Washington College, Chestertown, Md. During the war he served in the Pacific with the Navy.

The wedding will take place September 7 at 4 p. m. in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Aquasco.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

Comdr. Joseph Miller, the former A. P. newspaperman, served in the Navy as labor adviser to Admiral Ben Moreel, the former Seabees boss, who now heads the Navy's supply and procurement division . . . A few days ago Commander Miller noticed that the concrete porch on his house was deteriorating. He remembered that Admiral Moreel is the world's foremost authority on reinforced concrete, and so he asked the admiral for advice . . . Admiral Moreel accepted the assignment, but said that it would have to await his completion of another concrete job—a survey of concrete involved in the new construction on the Panama Canal.

There are tourists in Europe who, coupling a superficial study of finance with a minor strain on conscience, manage to travel through the Continent for many weeks without cost. In France, for example, the legal rate of exchange is 120 francs to the dollar. But at any hotel the concierge will gladly pay 210 francs to the dollar, accepting cash or travelers' checks. And in every bank in Switzerland 280 French francs per dollar is the legal rate

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Aug. 30.—The first issue of the Japanese edition of Reader's Digest was an immediate sell-out. Within three hours of publication copies were being offered for sale in Tokyo's black market. Some of the magazine vendors in the Japanese capital used copies of the Digest to bolster the distribution of poor-selling publications, by means of tie-in sales. To buy a copy of Reader's Digest, therefore, a customer also had to buy "Soviet Culture" . . . The Digest publishers offered two kinds of subscriptions, one for six months and the other for a full year. The mail brought, with one exception, full-year subscriptions. The only six-month subscriber was Prince Takamatsu, brother of the Emperor, who explained that he's broke now.

Danny Kaye

Denis McEvoy, who publishes the Japanese edition of Reader's Digest, visited the War Trials in Tokyo and was permitted to see Tojo alone. He asked Tojo: "When was the first time you began to suspect that your country would be defeated?" . . . Tojo replied that his first doubts about a Japanese victory came six months before the war ended. McEvoy then asked him about the atomic bomb and the Jap surrender after the bombing of Nagasaki. Tojo insisted that there never should have been a surrender, that the atomic bomb could not have destroyed the cave-defense in the homeland, that it would have been better if the Japanese had continued to fight, and that the invading Americans would have been discouraged and then would have gone home.

In Berlin before the war a German who was anxious for the American Government to know exactly what the Nazi officials were planning to do succeeded in delivering to an American official a series of important documents. This is how the documents were delivered, despite the constant Gestapo activity: The German would go to a Berlin theater-broker, by prearrangement, and buy two tickets for a show. Then the ticket broker would phone the American official and ask whether he wanted to see a show that night. The American's seats always were next to the German's. No sign of recognition ever passed between them. But when the theater lights were lowered and the orchestra darkened, the documents would be delivered.

Sholem Asch is returning to Europe. He will live in a villa he owns near Cannes . . . Danny Kaye will make a tour of one-night stands. He will give 33 performances in 39 days in local auditoriums . . . Geoffrey Parsons, sr., the Pulitzer prize-winning editorial writer, is recuperating after an operation at the American Hospital in Paris . . . Alfred Hitchcock was in the Stork Club the other night, denouncing actors as usual. "For a man to put paint and powder on his fact must be humiliating," said Hitchcock. "Then, in his work, he must pretend to be someone he isn't. And the greater the quality of this insincerity, the better he's rated."

Your Questions On Homemaking

Is it possible to pickle unfinished pine furniture, and if so, how? How should one pickle a desk with a mahogany stain? H. T. V.

Bleaching is not easy and there are no short cuts. Prepare for a job! Materials should be of the best. Use brushes of good quality only.

For the unfinished pine proceed as follows:

1. Bleach the wood. Use a commercial wood bleach and follow manufacturer's directions carefully. Rinse with clear water to remove all bleach. When wood is dry, sandpaper surface with fine-grained paper and brush off the dust.

2. Rub on white lime or white lead or a coat of flat white paint and wipe off almost immediately. After a day or two of drying apply a thin coat of shellac. Dry. Sandpaper surface lightly with fine-grained paper.

3. Final process is to apply liquid wax. From three to 10 coats can be put on, according to your ambition.

To pickle the desk which has been stained follow the directions above, but first remove all traces of the dark stain with paint and varnish remover. It will require more bleaching than the unfinished pine since the stain will have discolored the wood.

To remove old finish proceed as follows: Apply commercial paint and varnish remover generously to a small area with a brush. Allow it to stand until the old finish softens. Lift off finish with a putty knife and follow with fine steel wool. Repeat until entire surface has been treated. Your may have to use the varnish remover a second and even a third time. Wash away residue of remover with turpentine. Now you're ready to start the bleaching process.

Could you please tell me how I can remove fingernail polish from white cotton? I have used a polish remover but a pink stain remains. C. H. S.

Stretch stained portion over a bowl or place it on a soft pad. If you use the pad method sponge carefully with amyl acetate (banana oil) and then launder as usual. If you use the bowl method stretch stained portion over a bowl of steaming water and drop banana oil on the stain with a medicine dropper. Launder as usual.

Or you may be able to remove the stain with peroxide, using either bowl or pad method.

How can I successfully recan sour red cherries that have been commercially canned? D. H.

The simplest way to recan is by the open kettle method. Since the cherries already have been cooked commercially it won't be necessary to recook them. But you must bring them a a full rolling boil. Let them boil for about three minutes in their own juice or in sirup. It may be necessary to add a little water or extra fruit juice.

If you want to sweeten them add sugar before you start to heat them. A thin sirup is made by using one part of sugar to three parts juice and a medium sirup with one part of sugar to two parts of juice.

Pack the boiling hot cherries and sirup in sterilized jars and seal tightly. Make sure jars and lids are thoroughly sterilized or cherries will spoil. Clean jars should be boiled for 15 minutes, then allowed to remain in the hot water until ready for use. Pour boiling water on the rubbers and lids—do not boil—but let them remain in the hot water until ready to use.

They Call It Labor Day, But—

'Summer's Last Fling' Finds Capital Deserted

By Marie McNair

LABOR DAY, summer's last fling, has lured almost everyone out of town for a holiday weekend in the mountains or by the sea.

The dean of the diplomatic corps, Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins, and Mme. Martins have gone back to Southampton, L. I., where they spent several weeks earlier in the season.

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson will be doing some fast traveling this weekend. Last night he spoke at a testimonial dinner in Endicott, N. Y., for Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines, who was being honored for his 32 years of service to the community.

Today the Secretary will sandwich in a visit with Mrs. Patterson and their four children on their farm at Cold Spring, N. Y., and then be off tomorrow for the West Coast. Labor Day will find him inspecting Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver at 10 a. m. and addressing the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in San Francisco that night.

Secretary Patterson will be back in his office at the War Department Wednesday, but Mrs. Patterson won't be returning to the Capital until the children's school reopens.

Stays in Newport

Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal will probably remain in Newport over the holiday, returning to Washington this week in time to welcome Mrs. Forrestal home from Europe.

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius A. Krug and their daughter, Marilyn, took a plane last night for New York, but will be back in town tomorrow. The Secretary will be flying down to Puerto Rico Monday to attend the inauguration of President Jesus T. Pinero. "I hope I'll be able to go along," says Mrs. Krug.

With the Secretary of the Treasury still away on the cruise with President Truman, Mrs. John W. Snyder and daughter, Drucie, have elected to remain in town over the holiday. Other stay-at-homes in the Cabinet set are the Postmaster General and Mrs. Robert E. Hannegan and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach, who are entertaining out-of-town guests. And, of course, the Secretary will be making his traditional Labor Day broadcast to the Nation.

Too Busy to Leave

The Spanish Ambassador, Juan de Cardenas and Senora de Cardenas are in New York for the weekend. Senora de Cardenas will go from there to Massachusetts and the Ambassador will leave about September 11 for a visit to Spain.

Additional duties as a member of U. N.'s Social and Economic Council will keep Ambassador Guillermo Belt of Cuba too busy for a holiday, so his pretty Senora is remaining here too. Yesterday the Ambassador and Senora de Belt entertained at cocktails for the group of representative Cuban girls winners of a contest sponsored by the Good Neighbor Association of Cuba, who are on a trip to Washington and Neew York. Members of the staff were other guests at the fete.

"Too much work for my poor husband," says Chilean - born Mrs. Spruille Braden, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, explaining why they are staying in town.

The Panama Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino will go to New York today to meet their daughter, Senorita Hilda Vallarino, who is arriving fro mEurope after attending a Red Cross conference in London. They'll all return tomorrow.

Town Talk

When You Can Wear Furs in August In Washington It's News—and Fun!

By Eva Hinton

ANY time you can wear a fur wrap on an August evening in Washington it's news, even though the next evening may be hot enough to make you faint at thought of a lace scarf.

Dancing on the terrace at Chevy Chase Club the other evening was such chilly sport as to make furs popular. One of the prettiest was worn by recent bride, Mrs. Edgar Murdock, jr., who set off her little white ermine jacket to perfection.

Gaily dancing together that evening, too, were John Caswell and his handsome wife. Not so recently married, they can still give brides and bridegrooms hints on how to be happy though dancing with your better-half.

Eugene Carusi was host at a small party for dining and dancing. His guests included Mr. and Mrs. Reber Littlehales, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barnes and the Tom Blakes. Over her evening gown of steel gray lace stunning Mrs. Blake wore a snug red velvet jacket with a beaded design.

One feminine dancer on the cool terrace was heard to remark, "I really wanted to put the furnace on this morning! I keep the temperature of the house near 70 in winter so why should I have it at 63 in August?"

PEOPLE already are beginning to drift back to town. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling are looking very fit after a vacation at Nonquitt, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. James Wadsworth, jr., who have visited both his and her families, with a stopover at Watch Hill with Mrs. Eugene Carusi, also are getting into the swing of city dwelling again.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Tinsley Garnett are taking a late summer vacation visiting Mrs. Jasper Du Bose at Wainscott, Long Island, and also will stop off to see the Arthur Gardners at Watch Hill.

In Atlantic City Mme. Espil, wife of the former Argentine Ambassador to Washington, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Frank Letts. At the conclusion of her visit Mme. Espil went to New York, whence she will leave later for Europe.

Mrs. Carleton Holdrege is at the Marlborough-Blenheim on the boardwalk for a fortnight's visit with Mrs. Emerson Howe. Also at Atlantic City is Mrs. Charles Bromwell, who plans to visit Washington in the fall. Mrs. Bromwell's daughter, Lady Bailey, is in England with her family.

JUDGE JOHN W. KERN is very keen about his trip to Cambridge, Mass., where he was asked to judge the Himes Competition at Harvard this week. It was almost, but not quite, a case of "dreams come true." The amiable judge took extra pleasure in helping award the much-sought prize because more than two decades ago he tried for it himself and was disappointed. Never a dog-in-the-manger, Judge Kern enjoyed seeing someone else win what he had once coveted.

TWO bits of paper tossed on a writing desk in a Western Union office in a small Missouri town the other day were mute witnesses of utter frustration. According to my informant, the first was a telegraph blank addressed in angry handwriting to "Harry S. Truman, Washington, D. C." The second was a newspaper, apparently flung down in disgust, which showed a picture of the President swimming lazily and happily in Bermudan waters, far from protesting citizens.

Connellys Enjoying Cape Cod Vacation

Secretary to the President and Mrs. Matthew J. Connelly are at Oyster Harbors Club, Cape Cod, Mass,, to remain through the Labor Day weekend. Mr. Connelly accompanied President Truman on his cruise as far as Quonset, where Mrs. Connelly joined him and the couple continued on to Cape Cod.

Also at Oyster Harbors Club are Mr. and Mrs. William W. Rapley and their daughter, Mary; Dr. and Mrs. Roy Adams and their daughter, Helen; and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Israel.

Christened

Darrow Partridge Dutcher, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jaynes Dutcher, was christened yesterday at St. John's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. William Harris officiating. In the absence of her godparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Vogt and Mrs. R. A. Lander, Rochester, N. Y., the Misses Jean and Jane Partridge acted as proxies.

In California

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Grosner are vacationing at Arrowhead Springs, Calif.

You may not know it

You may not ever know it but
. . . My heart belongs to you . . .
Because you are so much a part
Of everything I do . . . You wake me in the morning when . . .
The sun begins to shine . . . And you remind me everywhere
. . . That you are really mine
. . . You fill my every afternoon
. . . With dreams of days to be . . . In happiness that only God . . . Can give to you and

"If it weren't for me, we wouldn't have anything to do on this picnic!"

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Day of Reckoning

WHAT has become of the girl behind the counter who used to snap, "Don't you know there's a war on?"

I wish I could report she was being booted out of restaurants, stores and offices on her job-seeking rounds. But unfortunately she hasn't come to that yet, as my recent checking on her and her ilk has revealed.

With the end of the shooting war more than a year past, with eight million returned veterans helping to man industry, with three and a half million new faces in the labor force since July 1, I decided to find out if any of the once mighty had fallen.

What had become, I wondered, of the exasperated saleswoman who replied grandly, "I wouldn't know," when asked if some desperately needed product would ever be in? Was the glaring waiter still being appeased by cowering patrons? Was the haughty secretary a few months out of high school still ruling her office roost? Was the poker-faced robot at the hotel desk still barking "No vacancies"?

AND HAD the lackadaisical boys behind soda fountains returned to their sandlots? Had the day-dreaming girls at lunch counters decided woman's place was the home? Were the sullen, pan-slamming maids dropping in at employment bureaus? Had all the bumptious and none-too-bright people the war had brought into public life gone back to—well back where they came from?

A preliminary survey showed most of these persons missing from their old stands. Was it possible their day of reckoning had come and gone?

Employment figures dissipated this idea. Apparently nobody was in a soup line, even a job line. Fifty-eight million people at work, the highest number in the Nation's history! Jobs going begging in the service industries because of the relative low pay and bad working conditions. Stenographers, secretaries, typists at a premium. Department stores calling for help as sales boomed. Household workers continuing their long-term exodus from American life.

Yes, it looked as if the people we consumers had so longed to see put in their places might continue, perhaps forever, putting us in ours.

YET, POWER was changing hands. Employers' standards were steadily rising. Veterans were coming out of the service with new skills. Discharged warworkers had had their rests, and were beginning to "look around." The labor force was becoming younger, more vigorous, more competent. There was a general stepping up on efficiency. While older workers—who had always been the most polite and accommodating, even if the slowest—had been the first to go, yet the churls, the smart alecks and the slow-witted were no longer out in front.

What had become of them? No one knew exactly. Some had returned to school or family bounty. Some had been shifted to less-conspicuous jobs. Some had mended their ways for the nonce. Many of the girls, it was believed, had found marriage to their servicemen beaux the way out. Some few possibly had been sent a-packin' by employers.

Yes, the girl who snapped, "There's a war on," had lost dominance. But she was not tramping the streets looking for a job. The army of predicted unemployables that had been the social workers' nightmare had not materialized. Only 2,270,000 Americans were unemployed, and these were chiefly those looking for the right places or shifting jobs.

We once-downtrodden consumers had lost our revenge, had failed to have our day of reckoning. But—so far at least—we had escaped having to build kite factories or pay out relief funds for those we predicted wouldn't hold their jobs a split second once the war was over. It might have been worse.

Arlington to Honor First Women Voters

Mrs. Charles E. Planck, president of the Arlington and Alexandria Branch, League of Women Voters, will give a tea Saturday, September 7, at 5 p. m. in her home, 3234 North Pershing dr., to honor the first women in Arlington who cast a ballot before noon November 2, 1920, in the first national election in which women were eligible.

The search for women who voted in that first election so far has revealed 10, but the hunt is still on. If you were among that first voting group telephone OX. 2050. This is a feature event in conjunction with Arlington's Centennial Celebration.

Spickards Visiting

Mrs. O. M. Spickard and daughter, Miss Evelyn Spickard, Jackson, Miss., are the house guests of Miss Annie McCardle.

Gamma Phi Betas To Fete Collegians

Washington Alumnae chapter of Gamma Phi Beta will honor girls planning to attend college away from Washington with a tea Sunday, September 8, from 3 to 5 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Boyd R. Sayers, 3127 Dumbarton ave., Georgetown. Coming from out of town to assist will be Mrs. Sayers' daughter, Mrs. Raymond Brown, jr.

Miss Nellie Greaves is in charge of arrangements, aided by Miss Janet Lingle, Miss Irene Hollenbeck and Mrs. Elma Dulaney. All active and alumnae members are invited. Mrs. C. H. Luedeman, Glebe 2919, heads reservations.

Peruvian Envoy Coming

The new Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Prado will arrive in Washington Monday. They will be met at 11:30 at Union Station by a group of officials from the Embassy.
